T. Paucier, and are to be solde at the Signe of the Catte and Parrats neare the Exchange.

ACTVS PRIMVS.

Enter the Ghost of Andrea, and with him Renenge.

Ghost.

Hen this eternall substance of my soule,
Did liue imprisond in my wanton flesh,
Each in their function seruing others neede,
I was a Courtier in the Spanish Court:
My name was Don Andrea, my discent
Though not ignoble, yet inferiour farre

To gracious fortunes of my tender youth
For there in prime and pride of all my yeeres,
By ductious seruice, and deseruing loue,
In secret I posselt a worthy Dame,
Which hight sweete Bel-imperia by names
But in the haruest of my sommer ioyes,
Deathes winter nipt the blossomes of my blisse,
Forcing diuorce betwixt my loue and me
For in the late conflict with Portingale,
My valour drew me into dangers mouth,
Till life to death made passage through my woundest
When I was slaine, my soule descended straight
To passe the flowing streame of Acheron,
But churlish Charon onely Boat-man there,
Sayd, that my rites of buriall not performde,
I might not sit amongst his passengers:
Ere Sol had slept three nightes in Tiberis lap,
And slakt his smoaking Chariot in her floud,
By Don Horatio our Knight-Marshals sonne,
My Funerals and obsequies were done:
Then was the Ferri-man of Hell content,

A 2.

To

The Spanish Tragedie.

To passe me ouer to the slimie strand,
That leades to fell Auritus ougly waues:
There pleasing Corbenus with hoined speech,
I past the perils of the forinost porch,
Not farre from hence amidst ten thousand soules,
Sate Minos, Eacus, and Rhadamanth:
To whom no sooner gan I make approach,
To craue a pasport for my wandring Ghost,
But Minos in grauen leaues of Lotterie,
Drew forth the manner of my lyfe and death.
This Knight (quoth he) both liu'd and dyed in loue,
And for his loue tryed fortune of the Warres,
And by Warres fortune, lost both loue and life.
Why then sayd Eacus, conuey him hence,
To walke with Louers in our fieldes of loue,
And spend the course of euerlasting time,
Vnder greene Mirtle trees and Cypers shades.
No, no, sayd Rhadamanth, it were not well,
With louing soules, to place a Martiaill;
He died in warre, and must to Martiaill fieldes:
Where wounded Hector liues in lasting paine,
And Achillis mermedons to scoure the plaine.
Then Minos mildest censor of the three,
Made this deuice to end the difference.
Send him (quoth he) to our infernall King:
To doome him as best seemes his Maiestie:
To this effect my pasport straight was drawne,
In keeping on my way to Plutos Court,
Through dreadfull shades of euer glooming night:
I saw more sights then thousand tongues can tell,
Or pennies can write, or mortall hartes can thinke.
Three wayes there were, that, on the right hand side,
Was ready way vnto the foresaid fieldes,
Where Louers liue, and bloodie Martiaillies:
But either sort containd within his boundes,
The left hand path declining fearefullie,
Was readie downe fall to the deepest hell,

Where

The Spanish Tragedie.

Where bloodie furies shakes their whippes of Steele,
And poore Lixen turns an endles wheele:
Where Vzurers are choakt with melting gold,
And Wantons are imbraile with ouglie Snakes,
And Murderers greecue with euerkilling woundes,
And Periurde wightes scalded in boyling lead,
Twixt these two wayes, I trode the middle path,
Which brought me to the faire Elizian Greene:
In middst whereof, there standes a stately Towre,
The Walles of Brasse, the Gates of Adamant:
Heere finding Pluto with his Proserpine,
I shewed my Pasport humbled on my knees
Whereat faire Proserpine began to smile,
And begd that onely she might giue my doome.
Pluto was pleasd, and seald it with a kisse.
Foorthwith Renenge she rounded thee in th'eare,
And bade thee lead me through the gates of Horror:
Where dreames haue passage in the silent night.
No sooner had she spoke, but we were heere,
I wot not how, in twinkling of an eye,

Renenge.

Then know Andrea, that thou art arived,
Where thou shalt see the author of thy death:
Don Balhazar the Prince of Portingale,
Depriv'd of life by Bel-imperia:
Heere sit we downe to see the misterie,
And serue for Chorus in this Tragedie.

Enter Spanish King, Generall, Castile, Hieronimo.
King.

Now say Lord Generall, how fares our Campe?

Gen. All wel my soueraigne Liege, except some few,
That are deceast by fortune of the Warre.

King. But what portendes thy cheerefull countenance,
And passing to our presence thus in haste?
Speake man? hath fortune giuen vs victorie?

Gen.

The Spanish Tragedie.

Gen. Victorie my Liege, and that with little losse.

King. Our Portingales will pay vs tribute then.

Gen. Tribute, and wouted homage there withall.

King. Then blest be heauen, and guider of the heauens,
From whose faire influence such iustice flowes.

Cast. O multum dilectis Deo, tibi militas ather.

Et conuicta curuato poplito gentes

Succumbunt : recti sror est victoria iuris.

King. Thanks to my louing brother of Castile

But Generall, vnfolde in brieft discourse

Your forme of Battell, and your Warres successe,

That adding all the pleasure of thy newes.

Vnto the height of former happinesse,

With deeper wage and greater dignitie,

We may reward thy blisfull chiuarie.

Gen. Where Spain and Portingale do ioyntly knie.

Their frontires, leaning on each others bound:

There met our Armies in their proud aray:

Both furnisht well, both full of hope and feare:

Both menacing a like with daring shoves,

Both vaunting sundrie colours of deuice;

Both cheerefully sounding trumpets, drummes, and fifes:

Both raising dreadfull clamors to the skie,

That vallies, hilles, and riuers made rebound,

And heauen it selfe was frighted with the sound.

Our Battels both were pitcht in squadron forme,

Each corner strongly fensht with winges of shot:

But ere we ioynde and came to push of Pike,

I brought a squadron of our readiest shot

From out our reareward, to begin the fight,

They brought an other wing to encounter vs:

Meane while, our Ordinance played on either side,

And Captaines stroue to haue their valours tride,

Don Pedro their chiefe Horsemens Coronell

Did with his Coronet brauely make attempt,

To breake the order of our Battell-rankes:

But Don Rogero, worthy man of warre,

Marche

The Spanisſh Tragedie.

Marcht foorth againſt him with our Muſketiers,
And ſtopt the malice of his fell approach:
While they maintaine hot ſkirmiſh too and fro,
Both Battailles ioyne, and fall to handie blowes:
Their violent Shot reſembling th'Oceans rage,
When roaring loude, and with a ſwelling tyde,
It beates vpon the rampiers of huge Rockes,
And gapes to ſwallow neighbour bounding landes:
Now while Bellona rageth heere and there,
Thicke ſtormes of Bullets ran like Winters hayle,
And ſhiuered Launces, darkt the troubled ayre.

Pede pæ & cuspide cuspis.

Annis ſonant annis, vir petiturq; uir.

On every ſide drop Captaines to the ground,
And Souldiers lie maimde, ſome ſlaine outright:
Heere fallſ a body ſundered from his head,
There legges and armes lie bleeding on the graſſe,
Mingled with weapons and vnbowed ſteedes,
That ſcattering, ouer ſpread the purple plaine:
In all this turmoyle three long houres and more,
The victorye to neither part inclinde,
Till Don Andrea with his braue Launciers,
In their maine Battell made ſo great a breach,
That halfe diſmayde, the multitude retirde:
But Balthazar the Portingales young Prince,
Brought reſcue, and encourage them to ſtay.
Heere-hence the fight was eagerly renewd,
And in that conflict was Andrea ſlaine,
Braue man at armes, but weake to Balthazar,
Yet while the Prince insulting ouer him,
Breath'd out proud vauntes, ſounding to our reproch,
Friendſhip and hardie valour ioyn'd in one,
Prickt forth Horatio our Knight-marſhals ſonne,
To challenge forth that Prince to ſingle fight:
Not long betweene theſe twaine the fight indurde,
But ſtraight the Prince was beaten from his Horſe,
And forc't to yeelde him priſoner to his foe.

When

The Spanish Tragedie.

When he was taken, all the rest they fled,
And our Carbines pursued them to the death,
Till Phœbus wauing to the westerne deepe,
Our Trumpeters were charge to found retreat.

King. Thanks good L Generall for these good newes,
And for some argument of more to come,
Take this and weare it for thy Soueraignes sake.

Gives him his Chaine.

But tell me now, Hast thou confirme a peace?

Gen. No peace my Liege, but peace conditionall,
That it with homage tribute be well payde,
The furie of your forces will be stayde.
And to this peace their Vice-roy hath subscribde.

Gives the K. a paper.

And made a solemne vow, that during life,
His tribute shalbe truely payde to Spaine.

King. These wordes, these deedes, become thy person well.
But now Rnight Marshall, frolicks with the King,
For tis thy Sonne that winnes that Battels prize.

Here. Long may he liue to serue my Soueraigne liege,
And soone decay, valesse he serue my Liege.

King. Nor thou nor he, shall die without reward,
What meanes this warning of this Trumpet sound?

Gen. This tels me that your graces men of Warre,
Such as Warres fortune hath referu'd from death,
Come marching on towarde your royall seate,
To shew them selues before your Maiestie,
For so I gaue them charge at my depart:
Whereby by demonstration shall appeare,
That all (except three hundred, or few more)
Are safe returnd, and by their foes inricht.

The Armie enters, Balhazar betweene Lorenzo and Horatio captiue.

King. A glad some sight, I long to see them heere.

They enter and passe by.

Was that the war-like Prince of Portingales?

That

The Spanish Tragedie.

That by our Nephew was in triumph led?

Gen. It was my Liege, the Prince of Portingale;

King. But what was he that on the other side,

Held him by th'arme as partner of the prize?

Hiero. That was my Sonne my gracious Soueraigne,

Of whom, though from his tender infancie,

My louing thoughtes did neuer hope but well;

He neuer pleas'd his fathers eyes till now,

Nor fill'd my hart with ouer cloying ioyes.

King. Goe let them march once more about these walles,

That staying them, we may conferre and talke

With our braue prisner, and his double Guard.

Hieronimo, it greatly pleaseth vs,

That in our victorie thou haue a share,

By vertue of thy worthy Sonnes explayt.

Enter againe.

Bring hither the young Prince of Portingale,

The rest march on: but ere they be dismiss,

We will bestow on euery Souldier two Duckets,

And on euery Leader ten, that they may know

Our larges welcomes them.

Exeunt all but Bal. Lor. Hier.

Welcome Don Balhazar, welcome Nephew,

And thou Horatio thou art welcome too:

Yong prince, althought thy fathers hard misdeedes,

In keeping backe the tribute that he owes,

Deserue but euill measure at our hands:

Yet shalt thou know that Spaine is honourable.

Balt. The trespassse that my father made in peace,

Is now contrould by fortune of the warres:

And cardes once dealt, it boots not aske why so,

His men are slaine, a weakening to his Realme,

His colours ceaz'd, a blot vnto his name,

His sonne distressed, a corse to his heart,

These punishments may cleare his late offence.

King. I Balhazar, if he obserues this truce,

Our peace will grow the stronger for these warres:

Meane while liue thou as though not in libertie,

B

Yet

The Spanish Tragedie.

Yet from bearing any seruile yooke :
For in our hearing thy deserts were great,
And in our sight thy selfe art gracious.

Bal. And I shall studie to deserue this grace.

King. But tell me, for their holding makes me doubt,
To which of these twaine art thou prisoner ?

Lor. To me my liege.

Hor. To me my Soueraigne.

Lor. This hand first tooke the courset by the raines.

Hor. But first my launce did put him from his horse.

Lor. I ceaz'd his weapon and enioyd it first.

Hor. But first I forst him lay his weapons downe.

King. Let go his arme vpon our priuiledge.

Let him go.

So, worthy prince, to whether didst thou yeeld ?

Bal. To him in cutesiest to this perforce :

He spake me faire, this other gaue me strookes :

He promised life, this other threatned death :

He wane my loue, this other conquered me :

And truth to say, I yeeld my selfe to both.

Hero. But that I know your Grace for iust and wise,

And might seeme partiall in this difference;

Insortt by nature, and by law of Armes,

My tongue should plead for yong Horatius right.

He hunted well that was a Lions death,

Not he that in a garment wore his skin :

So Hares may pull dead Lyons by the beard.

King. Content thee Marshall, thou shalt haue no wrong.

And for thy sake thy sonne shall want no right.

Will both abide the censure of my doome ?

Lor. I craue no better then your Grace awardest.

Hor. Nor I, although I sit beside my right.

King. Then by my iudgement thus your strife shall end,

You both deserue, and both shall haue reward.

Nephew, thou tokst his weapon, and his horse

His weapons and his horse are thy reward.

Horatius, thou didst force him first to yeeld,

His

The Spanish Tragedie.

His rancome therefore is thy valours fee:
Appoint the summe as you shall both agree,
But Nephew, thou shalt haue the Prince in guard,
For thine estate best fiteth such a guest.

Horatio house were small for all his traine.

Yet in regard thy substance passeth his,
And that iust guerdon may befall desert,
To him we yeeld the Armor of the Prince.
How likes Don Balthazar of this deuice?

Bal. Right well my leige, if this prouiso were,
That Don Horatio beare vs companie,
Whom I admire and loue for cheualrie.

King. Horatio, leaue him not that loues thee so,
Now let vs hence to see our souldiers paid,
And feast our prisoner as our friendly guest. Exeunt.

Enter Viceroy, Alexandro, Villuppo.

Vice. Is our Embassadour dispatcht for Spaine?

Alex. Two daies (my liege) are past since his depart.

Vice. And tribute payment gone along with him?

Alex. I my good Lord.

Vice. Then rest we heere awhile in our vnrest.
And feed our sorrowes with some inward sighes,
For deepest cares breake neuer into teares.
But wherefore sit I in Regall throne,
This better fits a wretches endles moane.
Yet this is higher then my fortunes reach,
And therefore better then my state deserues.

Falles to the ground.

I, I, this earth, Image of melancholy,
Seekes him whom tates adiudged to miserie:
Heere let me lie, now am I at the lowest.

Qui iacet in terra non habet unde cadat.

In me consumpsit vires fortuna nocendo,

Nil superest ut iam possit obesse magis.

Yes Fortune may bereaue me of my Crowne:
Heere take it now, let Fortune do her worst.
She will not rob me of this fable weede:

The Spanish Tragedie.

O no, she enuies none but pleasant things,
Such is the folly of despitefull chance.
Fortune is blinde, and sees not my desertes.
So is she deafe, and heares not my laments:
And could she heare, yet is she wilfull mad,
And therefore will not pittie my distresse.
Suppose that she could pittie me, what then?
What helpe can be expected at her hands?
Whose foote standing on a rouling stone,
And minde more mutable then fickle windes.
Why waile I then wher's hope of no redresse?
O yes, complaining makes my grieve seeme lesse,
My late ambition hath distaind my faith,
My breach of faith occasion'd bloodie warres,
Those bloodie warres haue spent my treasure,
And with my treasure, my peoples blood,
And with their blood, my ioy and best beloued,
My best beloued, my sweete and onely Sonne.
O wherefore went I not to warre my selfe?
The cause was mine, I might haue died for both:
My yeeres were mellow, his but young and Greene,
My death were naturall, but his was forced.

Alex. No doubt my liege but still the prince suruiues.

Vice. Suruiues, I where?

Alex. In Spaine a prisoner by mischance of warre.

Vice. Then they haue slaine him for his fathers fault.

Alex. That were a breech to common law of Armes.

Vice. They reake no lawes that meditate reuenge.

Alex. His ransomes woorth will stay from foule reuenge,

Vice. No it he liued, the newes would soone be heere.

Alex. Nay, cuill newes will flie faster still than good.

Vice. Tell me no more of newes, for he is dead.

Villan. My Soueraigne, pardon the Authour of ill newes,
And he bewray the fortune of thy sonne.

Vice. Speake on, he guerdon thee what ere it be,
Mine eare is readie to receiue ill newes,
Mine heart grone hard gainst mischiefes batterie:

Stand

The Spanish Tragedie.

Stand vp I say and tell thy tale at large.

Uil. Then heare the truth which these mine eyes haue seene

When both the Armies were in battell ioynd,

Don Balbazar amidst the thickest troupes,

To winne renowne, did wondrous feats of Armes :

Amongst the rest, I saw him hand to hand

In single fight with their Lord Generall,

Till Alexandro that here counterfeites,

Vnder the colour of a duteous friend,

Discharged his Pistoll at the Princes backe,

As though he would haue slaine their Generall,

But therewithall Don Balbazar fell downe,

And when he fell, then began we to flie:

But had he liued, the day had sure beene ours.

Alex. O wicked forgerie : O traiterous miscreant.

Vice. Hold thou thy peace : but now Villuppo say,

Where then became the carcasse of my sonne ?

Villup. I saw them drag it to the Spanish tents.

Vice. I, I, my nightly dreames haue told me this :

Thou false, vnkind, vnthankfull trayterous beast,

Wherein had Balbazar offended thee,

That thou shouldst thus betray him to our foes?

Was't Spanish gold that bleared so thine eyes,

That thou couldst see no part of our desertes?

Perchaunce becaule thou art Terferaes Lord:

Thou hadst some hope to were this Diademe.

If first my Sonne, and then my selfe were slaine:

But thy ambitious thought shall breake thy necke,

I, this was it that made thee spill his blood.

Take the Crowne and put it on againe.

But he now weare it till thy blood be spilt.

Alex. Vouchsafe (dread Soueraigne) to heare me speake.

Vice. Away with him, his sight is second hell,

Keep him till we determine of his death.

If Balbazar be dead, he shall not liue.

Villuppo follow vs for thy reward.

Villup. Thus haue I with an enuious forged tale,

B 3.

Deceiued

The Spanish Tragedie.

Deceiued the King, betrayd mine enemye,
And hope for guerdon of my villanie.

Exit.

Enter Hraus and Bel-imperia.

Bel. Signior Horatio, this is the place and houre,
Wherein I must intreat thee to relate,
The circumstance of Don Andreas death:
Who liuing was my garlands sweetest flower,
And in his death hath buried my delights.

Hor. For loue of him, and seruice to your selfe,
I will refuse this heauie dolefull charge:
Yet teares and sighes I feare will hinder me.
When both our Armies were enioynd in fight,
Your worthy Chaulier amidst the thickest,
For glorious cause still aiming at the fairest,
Was at the last by yong Don Balthazar,
Encountred hand to hand: their fight was long,
There hearts were great, their clamours menacing,
Their strength alike, their strokes both dangerous.
But wrathfull Nemesis that wicked power,
Enuying at Andreas praise and worth,
Cut short his life to end his praise and worth;
She, she her selfe disguisde in armours maske,
(As Pallas was before proud Pergamus :)
Brought in fresh supply of Halberdiers,
Which pauncht his horse, and dinged him to the ground:
Then yong Don Balthazar with ruthles rage,
Taking aduantage of his foes distresse,
Did finish what his Halberdiers begun,
And left not till Andreas life was done.
Then thought too late incenst with iust remorse,
I with my band set forth against the Prince,
And brought him prisoner from his Halberdiers,

Bel. Would thou hadst slaine him that so slew my loue:
But then was Don Andreas carkasse lost?

Hor. No, that was it for which I chiefly stroue,
Nor slept I backe till I recouered him:
I tooke him vp and wound him in my armes.

And

The Spanish Tragedie.

And welding him vnto my priuate tent,
There layd him downe and dewd him with my teares,
And sighd and sorrowed as became a friend.
But neither friendly sorrowes, sighes nor teares,
Could win pale death from his vlturped right.
Yet this I did, and lesse I could not doe:
I saw him honoured with due funeral,
This scarfe pluckt off from his lieweles arme,
And weare it in remembrance of my friend.

Bel. I know the scarfe, would he had kept it still,
For had he liued he would haue kept it still,
And worne it for his Bel-imperias sake:
For twas my fauour at his last depart,
But now weare it both for him and me,
For after him thou hast deserued it best.
But for thy kindnes in his life and death,
Be sure while Bel-imperias life endures,
She will be Don Horatio thankfull friend.

Hor. And (Madame) Don Horatio will not slacke,
Humbly to serue faire Bel-imperia.
But now if your good liking stand thereto,
He craue your pardon to go seeke the Prince,
For so the Duke your father gaue me charge.

Bel. I, go Horatio, leaue me heere alone,
For solitude best fits my cheereles mood:
Yet what auails to waile Andreas death,
From whence Horatio proues my second loue?
Had he not loued Anareta as he did,
He could not sit in Bel-imperias thoughtes.
But how can loue finde harbour in my brest,
Till I reuenge the death of my beloued.
Yes, second loue shall further my reuenge.
He loue Horatio my Andreas friend,
The more to spight the Prince that wrought his end.
And where Don Balthazar that slew my loue,
Himselfe now pleades for fauour at my hands,
He shall in rigour of my iust disdain,

Reape

The Spanish Tragedie.

Reape long repentance of his murderous deedet
For what wast else but murderous cowardise,
So many to oppresse one valiant Knight,
Without respect of honour in the fight?
And here he comes that murdered my delight.

Enter Lorenzo and Balhazar.

Lor. Sister what meanes this melancholy walke?

Bel. That for a while I wish no companie.

Lor. But heere the Prince is come to visite you.

Bel. That argues that he liues in libertie.

Bal. No, Madam, but in pleasing seruitude.

Bel. Your prison then belike is your conceite.

Bal. I, by conceite my freedome is enhralde,

Bel. Then with conceite enlarge your selfe againe.

Bal. What if conceite haue laid my heart to gage?

Bel. Pay that you borrowed and recouer it.

Bal. I die if it returne from whence it lies.

Bel. A heartles man and liues? A miracle.

Bal. I, Lady, loue can worke such miracles.

Lor. Tush, tush, my Lord, let goe these ambages,
And in plaine tearmes acquaint her with your loue.

Bel. What boots complaint, when theres no remedie,

Bal. Yes to your gracious selfe must I complaine,

In whose faire answer lies my remedie,

On whose perfection all my thoughts attend,

On whose aspect mine eyes finde beauties bowre,

In whose translucent breastes my heart is lodgde.

Bel. Alas, my Lord, these are but wordes of course,
And but deuise to driue me from this place.

*She going in lets fall her gloue, which Horatio

Hor. Madame, your Gloue.

Bel. Thanks good Horatio, take it for thy paines.

Bal. Signior Horatio stoopt in happy time.

Hor. I reapt more grace then I deseru'd or hop'd.

Lor. My Lord, be not dismayde for what is past,
You know that women oft are humerous :

These

The Spanish Tragedie.

These cloudes will ouerblow with litle winds,
Let me alone, Ile scatter them my selfe:
Meane while let vs deuise to spend the time,
In some delightfull sports and reuelling.

Hor. The King, my Lord, is comming hither straight,
To feast the Portugall Embassadour,
Things were in readines before I came.

Bal. Then heere it fits vs to attend the King,
To welcome hither our Embassadour,
And learne my Father and my Countries health.

Enter the banquet, Trumpets, the King, and Embassadour.

King. See, Lord Embassadour, how Spaine entreates
Their prisoner, Balthazar, thy Viceroyes sonne:
We pleasure more in kindnes then in warres.

Emball. Sad is our King, and Portugall laments,
Supposing that Don Balthazar is slaine.

Bal. So am I slaine by beauties tyrannie:
You see, my Lord, how Balthazar is slaine,
I frolike with the Duke of Castile sonne,
Wrapt euery houre in pleasures of the Court,
And grac'd with fauours of his Maiestie.

King. Put off your greetings till our feast be done,
Now come and sit with vs and taste our cheere.

Sit to the Banquet.

Sit downe young Prince, you are our second guest,
Brother sit downe, and Nephew take your place,
Signior Horatio waite thou vpon our Cup,
For well thou hast deserued to be honoured.
Now, Lordings, fall too, Spaine is Portugall,
And Portugall is Spaine, we both are friends,
Tribute is paide, and we enioy our right.
But where is old Hieronimo our Marshall?
He promised vs in honour of our guest,
To grace our banquet with some pompous iest.

C

Enter

The Spanish Tragedie.

Enter Hieronimo with a Drum, three Knights, each his Scutchin: then he fetches three Kings; they take their Crownes and them captiue.

*Hieronimo, this Maske contentes mine eye,
Although I found not well the mysterie.*

*Hiero. The first armed Knight, that hung his Scutchin vp,
He takes the Scutchin and giues it to the King.*

*Was English Robert Earle of Gloster,
Who when King Stephen bore sway in Albion,
Arriued with fife and twentie thousand men
In Portingale, and by successe of warre,
Enforced the King (then but a Sarasin)
To beare the yoke of the English Monarchie.*

*King. My Lord of Portingale, by this you see,
That which may comfort both your King and you,
And make your late discomfort seeme the lesse:
But say Hieronimo, what was the next?*

*Hiero. The second Knight that hung his Scutchin vp,
He doth as he did before.*

*Was Edmond Earle of Kent in Albion,
When English Richard wore the Diadem:
He came likewise and razed Lisbort walles,
And tooke the King of Portingale in fight:
For which, and other such like seruice done,
He after was created Duke of Yorke.*

*King. This is an other speciall argument,
That Portingale may daine to beare our yoke,
When it by little Engling hath been yoked:
But now Hieronimo, what were the last?*

*Hiero. The third and last, not least in our account,
Doing as before.*

*Was (as the rest) a valiant English-man,
Braue Iohn of Gunt the Duke of Lancaster,
As by his Scutchin plainly may appeare:
He with a puissant armie came to Spaine,
And tooke our King of Castile prisoner.*

Embass. This is an argument for our Viceroy,

That

Robert Earle of Gloster Albion

The Spanish Tragedie.

That Spain may not insult for her successe,
Since English warriours likewise conquered Spain,
And made them bow their knees to Albion.

King. Hieronimo, I drinke to thee for this deuice,
Which hath please both the Embassadour and met
Pledge me Hieronimo, if thou loue the King.

Takes the Cup of Horatio,

My Lord, I feare we sit but ouer long,
Vnlesse our dainties were more delicate:
But welcome are you to the best we haue.
Now let vs in, that you may be dispatht,
I thinke our Counsell is alreadie set.

Exeunt omnes.

Andrea.

Come we for this from depth of vnder ground,
To see him feast, that gaue me my deathes wound?
These pleasant sightes are sorrow to my soule,
Nothing but league, and loue, and banqueting?

Renengo.

Be still Andrea, ere we go from hence,
He turne their friendship into fell despight:
Their loue to mortall hate, their day to night,
Their hope into dispaire, their peace to warre,
Their ioyes to paine, their blisse to miserie.

ACTVS SECVNDVS.

Enter Lorenzo and Balthazar.

Lorenzo.

MY Lord, though Bel-imperia seeme thus coy,
Let reason hold you in your wonted ioy:
In time the sauage Bull sustaines the yoake,
In time all haggard Hawkes will stoope to lure,
In time small wedges cleaue the hardest Oake,
In time the Flint is pearst with softest shower,
And she in time will fall from her disdain,
And rue the sufferance of your friendly paine.

Balt.

The Spanish Tragedie.

Bal. No, she is wilder and more hard withall,
Then beast, or bird, or tree, or stonie wall.
But wherefore blot I Bel-imperias name?
It is my fault, not she that merites blame.
My feature is not to content her sight,
My wordes are rude, and worke her no delight.
The lines I send her are but harsh and ill,
Such as doe drop from Pan and Marsias quill:
My presents are not of sufficient cost,
And being worthles, all my labours lost.
Yet might she loue me for my valiancie:
I, but thats slaundered by captiuitie.
Yet might she loue me to content her fire:
I, but her reason maisters his desire.
Yet might she loue me as her brothers friend:
I, but her hopes aime at some other end.
Yet might she loue me to vpreare her state:
I, but perhaps she hopes some nobler mate.
Yet might she loue me as her beautionous thrall,
I, but I feare she can not loue at all.

Lor. My Lord, for my sake leaue these extasies,
And doubt not but weele finde some remedie,
Some cause there is that lets you not beloued:
First, that must needs be knowen, and then remoued.
What if my sister loue some other Knight?

Bal. My sommers day will turne to winters night.

Lor. I haue already found a stratageme.
To sound the bottome of this doubtfull theame.
My Lord, for once you shall be rulde by me,
Hinder me not what ere you heare or see.
By force, or faire meanes will I cast about,
To finde the truth of all this question out.
Ho, Pedringano.

Pedr. Signior.

Lor. Vien que presto.

Enter Pedringano.

Ted. Hath your Lordship any seruice to command mee?

Lor. I,

The Spanish Tragedie.

Lor. I, Pedringano, seruice of impart,
And not to spend the time in trifling words.
Thus stands the case: it is not long thou knowest,
Since I did shield thee from my fathers wrath,
For thy conueiance in Andreas loue:
For which thou wert adiudged to punishment,
I stood betwixt thee and thy punishment:
And since, thou knowest how I haue fauoured thee,
Now, to these fauours will I adde reward,
Not with faire wordes, but store of golden coyne,
And lands, and liuings ioyn'd with dignities,
If thou but satisfie my iust demand.
Tell truth, and haue me for thy lasting friend.

Ped. What ere it be your Lordship shall demaund,
My bounden duetie bids me tell the truth:
If case it lie in me to tell the truth.

Lor. Then, Pedringano, this is my demaund,
Whom loues my sister Bel-imperia?
For she reposed all her trust in thee:
Speake man, and gayne both friendship and reward:
I meane, whom loues she in Andreas place?

Ped. Alas, My Lord, since Don Andreas death,
I haue no credite with her as before,
And therefore know not if she loue or no.

Lor. Nay, if thou dallie, then I am thy fo, Draw his sword.
And feare shall force what friendship cannot winne,
Thy death shall bury what thy life conceales:
Thou diest, for more esteeming her then me.

Ped. Oh, stay, my Lord.

Lor. Yet speake the truth, and I will guerdon thee,
And shield thee from what euer can ensue,
And will conceale what ere proceeds from thee,
But if thou dally once againe, thou diest.

Ped. If Madame Bel-imperia be in loue,

Lor. What Villaine, ifs and ands? Offer to kill him.

Ped. Oh, stay, my Lord: She loues Horatio.

Balthazar starts backe.

The Spanish Tragedie.

Lor. What Don Horatio our knight Marshalls sonne?

Ped. Euen him my Lord.

Lor. Now say, but how knowest thou he is her loue?
And thou shalt finde me kinde and liberall:
Stand vp I say, and feareles tell the trueth.

Ped. She sent him letters, which my selfe perused,
Full fraught with lines and arguments of loue,
Preferring him before Prince Balthazar.

Lor. Swear on this crosse that what thou sayest is true,
And that thou wilt conceale what thou hast tolde.

Ped. I swear to both, by him that made vs all.

Lor. In hope thine oath is true, heers thy reward,
But if I prooue thee periurde and vniust,
This very sword whereon thou tookest thine oath,
Shall be the worker of thy tragedie.

Ped. What I haue said is true, and shall for me,
Be still conceald from Bel-imperia.
Besides, your Honors liberalitie,
Deserues my dutious seruice, euen till death.

Lor. Let this be all that thou shalt doe for me,
Be watchfull when; and where these louers meete,
And giue me notice in some secret sort.

Ped. I will my Lord.

Lor. Then shalt thou finde that I am liberall,
Thou knowest that I can more aduance thy state:
Then she, be therefore wise and faile me not:
Goe and attend her as thy custome is,
Least absence make her thinke thou doest amisse.

Exit Pedringano.

Why so, Tam armis quam ingenio;
Where words preuailes not, violence preuailes.
But gold doth more then either of them both,
How likes Prince Balthazar this stratageme?

Bal. Both well, and ill: it makes me glad and sad:
Glad, that I know the hinderer of my loue,
Sad, that I feare, she hates me whome I loue:
Glad, that I know on whom to be reuenged,

Sad,

The Spanish Tragedie.

Sad, that sheele flie me if I take reuenge,
Yet must I take reuenge, or die my selfe,
For loue resisted growes impatient.
I thinke Horatio be my destinde plague.
First, in his hand he brandished a sword:
And with that sword, he fiercely waged warre,
And in that warre he gaue me dangerous woundes,
And by those woundes he forced me to yeeld,
And by my yeelding, I became his slaue.
Now in his mouth he caries pleasing words,
Which pleasing words doe harbour sweet conceits,
Which sweet conceits are limbe with flie deceites,
Which flie deceits smoth Bel-imperia's cares,
And through her eares diue downe into her heart,
And in her heart set him where I should stand:
Thus had he tane my body by his force,
And now by sleight would captiuate my soule:
But in his fall Ile tempt the destinies.
And either lose my life, or winne my loue.

Lor. Lets goe, my Lord, your staying stayes reuenge,
Doe you but follow me, and gaine your loue.
Her fauour must be wonne by his remouue. Exeunt.

Enter Horatio and Bel-imperia.

Her. Now, Modame, since by fauour of your loue,
Our hidden smoke is turned to open flame:
And that with lookes and wordes we feed our thoughts,
Two chiefe contents, where more cannot be had,
Thus in the midst of loues faire blandishments,
Why shew you signe of inward languishments,

Pedringano sheweth all to the Prince, and Lorenzo, placing them in secret.

Bel. My heart, sweet friend, is like a ship at Sea,
She wisheth port, where riding all at ease,
She may repaire what stormie times haue worne:
And leaning on the shore may sing with ioy,
That pleasure follow paine, and blisse annoy.

Possession

The Spanish Tragedie.

Possession of thy loue is th'onely port,
Wherein my heart with feares and hopes long tost,
Each houre doeth wish and long to make resort,
Thereon repaire the ioyes that it hath lost:
And sitting safe to sing in Cupids Quire,
That sweetest blisse is crowne of loues desire.

Balt. O, sleepe, mine eyes: see not my loue prophande.
Be deafe my eares, heare not my discontent.
Die heart, another ioyes what thou deseruest.

Lor. Watch still mine eyes, to see the loue disioynd:
Heare still mine eares, to heare them both lament:
Leaue heart to ioy at fond Horatios fall.

Bel. Why stands Horatio speechles all this while?

Hor. The lesse I speake, the more I meditate.

Bel. But whereon doest thou chiefly meditate?

Hor. On dangers past, and pleasures to ensue.

Bal On pleasure past and dangers to ensue.

Bel. What dangers, and what pleasures doest thou meane?

Hor. Dangers of warre, and pleasures of our loue.

Lor. Dangers of death, but pleasures none all.

Bel. Let dangers goe, thy warre shall be with me:
But such a warring as breakes no bond of peace.

Spake thou faire words, Ile crosse them with faire wordes,
Send thou sweet looks, Ile meete them with sweete looks:
Write louing lines, Ile answere louing lines:
Giue me a kisse, Ile countercheke thy kisse,
Be this our warring peace, or peacefull warre.

Hor. But gracious Madame, then appoint the field,
Where triall of this warre shall first be made.

Bal. Ambitious villaine, how his boldnes growes?

Bel. Then by thy fathers pleasant bower the field
Where first we vowde our mutuall amitie:
The Court were dangerous, that place is safe:
Our houre shall be when Vesper gins to rise,
That summons home distressfull trauellers.
There none shall heare vs but the harmelesse birdes:

Happely

The Spanish Tragedie.

Happily the gentle Nightingale,
Shall carroll vs asleepe ere we be ware :
And singing with the prickle at her brest,
Tell our delight and mirthfull dalliance.
Till then each houre will seeme a yeere and more.

Hor. But honie sweet, and honourable loue,
Returne we now into your fathers sight,
Dangerous suspection waites on our delight.

Lor. I, danger mixt with jealous despite,
Shall send thy soule into eternall night. Exeunt.

Enter King of Spaine, Portingale Embassadour,

Don Ciprian. &c.

King. Brother of Castile, to the Princes loue,
What sayes your daughter Bel-imperia ?

Cip. Although she coy it as becomes her kinde,
And yet dissemble that she loues the Prince :
I doubt not I, but she will stoope in time.
And were she froward, which she will not be,
Yet herein shall the follow my aduice,
Which is to loue him, or forgoe my loue.

King. Then Lord Embassadour of Portingale,
Aduice thy King to make this marriage vp,
For strengthening of our late confirmed league.
I know no better meanes to make vs friends,
Her dowrie shall be large and liberall,
Besides that, she is daughter and halfe heire,
Vnto our brother, here Don Ciprian,
And shall enioy the moitie of his land,
He grace her marriage with an vnckles gift.
And this it is, in case the match goe forward,
The tribute which you pay shall be releast,
And if by Balthazar she haue a sonne,
He shall enioy the kingdome after vs.

Embass. He make the motion to our Soueraigne liege,
And worke it if my counsaile may preuaile.

King. Do so, my Lord, and if he giue consent,
I hope his presence heere will honour vs.

D

In

The Spanish Tragedie.

In celebration of the nuptiall day,
And let him selfe determine of the time.

Em. Will please your grace to command me ought beside?

King. Commend me to the king, and so Fare-wel.
But whers Prince Balthazar, to take his leau?

Em. That is performde already, my good Lord.

King. Amongst the rest of what you haue in charge,
The Princes ransom must not be forgot:
Thats none of mine, put his that tooke him prisoner,
And well his forwardnes deserues reward.
It was Horatio, our Knight-marshals sonne.

Em. Betweene vs ther's a price already pitcht,
And shall be sent with all conuenient speed.

King. Then once againe, Fare-wel, my Lord.

Em. Fare-well my Lord o' Castile, and the rest, Exit.

King. Now brother, you must take some little paine,
To winne faire Bel-imperia from her will:
Yong virgins must be ruled by their friends,
The Prince is amiable, and loues her well,
If she neglect him and forgoe his loue,
She both will wrong her owne estate and ours.
Therefore whiles I doe entertaine the Prince,
With greatest pleasures that our Court affords,
Endeavour you to winne your daughters thoughts,
If she giue backe, all this will come to naught. Exeunt.

Enter Horatio, Bel-imperia, and Pedringano.

Hor. Now that the night begins with sable wings,
To over-cloud the brightnes of the Sunne,
And that in darkenes, pleasures may be done:
Come, Bel-imperia, let vs to the Bower,
And there in safetie passe a pleasant hower.

Bel. I follow thee, my loue, and will not backe,
Although my fainting heart controules my soule.

Hor. Why make you doubt of *Pedringano*s faith.

Bel. No, he is as trusty as my second selfe.
Goe, Pedringano, watch without the gate,
And let vs know if any make reproch.

Ped. In

The Spanish Tragedie.

Pedr. In stead of watching, Ile deserue more gold,
By fetching Don Lorenzo to this match. Exit Pedr.

Hor. What means my loue?

Bel. I know not what my selfe :

And yet my heart foretels me some mischance.

Hor. Sweet, say not so : faire Fortune is our friend,

And heauens haue shut vp day to pleasure vs.

The starres thou seest hold backe their twinckling shine,

And Luna hides her selfe to pleasure vs.

Bel. Thou hast preuailde, Ile conquer my misdoubt :

And in thy loue and counsell drowne my feare :

I feare no more, loue now is all my thoughts.

Why sit we not, for pleasure asketh ease.

Hor. The more thou sittest within these leane bowers,

The more will Flora decke it with her flowers.

Bel. I but if Flora spie Horatio heere,

Her ielous eye, will thinke I sit too neere.

Hor. Hark Madame, how the birds record by night,

Forioy that Bel-imperia sits in sight.

Bel. No, Cupid counterfeits the Nightingale,

To frame sweet musick to *Horatio*s tale.

Hor. If Cupid sing, then Venus is not farre,

I, thou art Venus, or some fairer starre,

Bel. If I be Venus, thou must needes be Mars,

And where Mars raigneth there, must needes be warre.

Hor. Then thus beginne our warres, put forth thy hand,

That it may combat with my ruder hand.

Bel. Set forth thy foote to trie the push of mine.

Hor. But first my lookes shall combat against thine.

Bel. Then ward thy selfe, I dart this kisse at thee.

Hor. Thus I returne the dart thou threwst at me.

Bel. Nay, then to gaine the glory of the field,
My twinning armes shall yoke and make thee yeeld.

Hor. Nay, then my armes are large and strong withall.

Thus Elmes by vines are compass't till they fall.

Bel. O let me goe, for in my troubled eyes,

Now mayest thou read that life in passion dies.

The Spanish Tragedie.

Hor. O stay awhile, and I will die with thee.
So shalt thou yeeld, and yet haue conquered me.

Bel. Who's there, Pedringano? We are betraide.

Enter Lorenzo, Balhazar, Cerberin, Pedringano disguised.

Lor. My Lord, away with her, take her aside,
O, sir, forbear, your valour is alreadie tride.

Quickly dispatch my masters. They hang him in the firber.

Hor. What, will ye murder me?

Lor. I thus, and thus: these are the fruites of love.

They stab him.

Bal. O save his life, and let me die for him:
O, save him brother, save him Balhazar.
I loued Horatio, but he loued not me.

Bal. But Balhazar loues Bel-imperia.

Lor. Although his life were ambitious proud,
Yet is he at the highest now he is dead.

Bel. Murder, murder, helpe Hieronimo helpe.

Lor. Come, stop her mouth, away with her.

Enter Hieronimo in his shirt.

Hier. What out-crie calls me from my naked bed.

And chill my throbbing heart with trembling feare,

Which neuer danger yet could daunt before:

Who calls Hieronimo? speake, heere I am.

I did not slumber therefore I was no dreamer.

No, no, it was some woman's crye for helpe,

And here within the garden did she cry.

And in this garden must I reuele her.

But stay, what murderous spectacle is this?

A man hang'd vp and all the murderers gone,

And in my bowre, to lay the guilt on me.

This place was made for pleasure not for death.

Hee kills him downe.

Those garments that he weares I oft haue seene:

Alas, it is Horatio my sweet sonne,

O no, but he that whilome was my sonne.

O, was it thou that call'dst me from my bed,

O, speake if any sparke of life remaine.

I am

The Spanish Tragedie.

I am thy father: who hath slaine my sonne?
 What sauage monster, not of humane kinde,
 Heere hath beene glutted with thy harmeles blood?
 And left thy bloodie corpes dishonoured heere,
 For me amidst this darke and deathfull shades,
 To drowne thee with an Ocean of my teares.
 O, heaueus why made you night to couer sinne?
 By day this deepe of darkenes had not beene.
 O, earth why didst thou not in time deuoure,
 The vile prophane of this sacred bower.
 O, poore Horatio, what hadst thou misdone?
 To leese thy life ere life was new begun,
 O, wicked Butcher what so ere thou wert.
 How couldst thou stangle vertue and desert?
 Aye me most wretched that haue lost my ioy,
 In seeing my Horatio my sweet boy.

Enter Isabella.

Isa. My husbands absence inakes my heart to throbbe.

Hieronimo.

Hier. Heere Isabella, helpe me to lament,

For sighes are stoppt, and all my teares are spent.

Isa. What world of griefe my sonne Horatio?

O, whers the author of this entiles woe.

Hier. To know the author were some ease of griefe,

For in reuenge my heart would find reliefe.

Isa. Then is he gone? and is my sonne gone too?

O, gush out teares, fountaines and floods of teares,

Blow sighes and raise an euerlasting storme,

For outrage fits our cursed wretchednes.

Aye me, Hieronimo, sweet husband speake.

Hier. He slept with vs to night, frolicke and mery.

And said he would goe visit Balthazar.

At the Dukes Palace: there the Prince doth lodge.

He had no custome to stay out so late,

He may be in his chamber, some go to see Rodrigo.

Enter Pedro, and Iaques.

Isa. Aye me, he saues, sweet Hieronimo.

The Spanish Tragedie.

Hiero. True, all Spaine takes note of it,
Besides he is so generally beloued,
His Maiestie the other day did grace him
With waiting on his cup: these be fauours
Which doe assure me cannot be short lived.

Isa. Sweet Hieronimo,

Hiero. I wonder how this fellow got his clothes:
Syrha, sirha, let know the truth of all:
Iaques, runne to the Duke of Castiles presently,
And bid my sonne Horatio to come home.
I, and his mother haue had strange dreames to night.
Doe ye heare me sir?

Iaques. I, sir.

Hiero. Well sir, begon. Pedro, comie hither knowest thou who this is.

Ped. Too well, sir.

Hiero. Too well, who? who is it? Peace, Isabella: Nay blush not man,

Ped. It is my Lord, Horatio.

Hiero. Ha ha; Saint Lucas, but this doth make me laugh,
That there are more deluded then my selfe.

Ped. Deluded?

Hiero. I, I would haue sworne my selfe within this houre,
That this had beene my sonne Horatio,
His garments are so like: Ha, are they not great perswasions,

Isa. O would to God it were no so.

Hiero. Were not, Isabella, dost thou dreame it is?
Can thy soft bosome intertaine a thought,

That such a blacke deede of mischiefe should be done,

On one so poore and spotles as our sonner?

Away, I am ashamed to see this motion of griefe

Isa. Deare Hieronimo, cast a more serious eye vpon thy Weake apprehension giues but weake beliefs.

Hiero. It was a manure that was hanged vp here,

A youth, as I remember, I cut him downe:

If it should proue my sonne now, I see easily

Say you, say you, light lend me a Taper,

Let me looke againe.

O God, confusion, mischiefe, torment, death and hell,

Drop

The Spanish Tragedie.

Drop all your stinges at once in my cold bosome,
That now is stiffe with horror, kill me quickly :
Be gracious to me thou infectiue night,
And drop this deede of murder downe on me,
Gird in my waist of griefe with thy large darkenesse,
And let me not suruiue, to see the light
May put me in the minde I had a sonne.

Isa. O, sweet Horatio, O, my dearest sonne.

Hiero. How strangely had I lost my way to griefe.
Sweet louely rose, ill pluckt before thy time :
Faire worthy sonne, not conquered but betraide :
Ile kisse thee now, for wordes with teares are staine.

Isa. And Ile close vp the glasses of his sight,
For once these eyes were onely my delight.

Hiero. Seest thou this hand-kercher besmerd with blood,
It shall not from me till I take reuenge :

Seest thou these woundes that yet are bleeding fresh,
Ile not intombe them till I haue reuengd :

Then will I ioy amidst my discontent,

Till then my sorrow neuer shall be spent.

Isa. The heauens are iust, murder cannot be hid,
Time is the authour both of trueth and right,
And time will bring this treacherie to light.

Hiero. Meane while, good Isabella, cease thy plaintes,
Or at the least dissemble them awhile.

So shall we sooner finde the practise out,
And learne by whom all this was brought about.

Come, Isabella, now lets take him vp,

They take him vp.

And beare him in from but this cursed place,
Ile say his dirge, singing fits not this case.

O aliquis mihi quas pulchrum uerducat herbas,

Hiero. sets his brett vnto his sword.

Misceat & nostro datur medicina dolori :

Aus si qui faciunt annum obliuia succos,

Prebeat, ipse metum magnum quicunque per orbem,

Gramina Sol pulchras effecit in luttinis oras,

Ise

The Spanish Tragedie.

*I se bibam quicquid meditatur saga veneni,
 Quicquid & irrami euocata membra nectit.
 Omnia perpetiar, letum quoque dum semel omnis,
 Noster in extincto moriatur pectore sensus:
 Ergo tuos oculos nunquam (mea vita) videbo.
 Et tua perpetuus sepeliet lumina somnus,
 Emoriar tecum sic, Sic iuuare sub umbras,
 At tamen absistam prope rato cedere letho,
 Ne mortem vindictis tuam tam nulla tequatur.*

Here he throwes it from him and beares the body away,

Andrea.

Broughtst thou me hither to encrease my paine:
 I lookt that Balthazar should haue beene slaine.
 But tis my friend Horatio that is slaine:
 And they abuse faire Bel-imperia,
 On whom I dooted more then all the world,
 Because she loued me more then all the world.

Revenge.

Thou talkest of haruest when the corne is greene,
 The end is growne of euery worke well done.
 The sickle comes not till the corne be ripe.
 Be still, and ere I lead thee from this place,
 He shew thee Balthazar in heauie case.

ACTVS TERCIVS.

Enter Viceroy of Portingale, Nobles, Alexandro Villapio.

Vice. I Nfortunate condition of Kings,
 Seated amidst so many helples doubts:
 First we are plapt vpon extreamest height,
 And oft supplanted with exceeding hate,
 But euer subiect to the wheele of chuncea:
 And at our highest neuer ioy we so,
 As we both doubt and dread our overthrow.
 So striueth not the waues with sundry windes,

As

The Spanish Tragedie.

As Fortune toileth in the affaires of Kings,
That would be feard, yet feare to be beloued,
Sith feare or loue to Kings is flatterie:
For Instance, Lordings looke vpon your King,
By hate deprived of his dearest sonne,
The onely hope of our successiue liue,

Nob. I had not thought that Alexandros heart,
Had beene in venomde with such extreame hate,
But now I see that wordes haue seuerall workes,
And ther's no credite in the countenance.

Vill. No, for my Lord, had you beheld the traine,
That fained loue had coloured in his lookes,
When he in Campe, consoorted Baltazar,
Farre more inconstant had you thought the Sunne,
That houely coastes the Centre of the earth,
Then Alexandros purpose to the Prince.

Vice. No more, Villuppo, thou hast said enough,
And with thy words thou slaicst our wounded thoughts.
Nor shall I longer dally with the world,
Procrastinating Alexandros death:
Goe some of you and fetch the traitour forth,
That as he is condemned, he may die.

Enter Alexandro, with a Noble man, and halberts.

Nob. In such extreames, will nought but patience serue.

Alex. But in extreames what patience shall I vse?
Nor discontents it me to leaue the word,
With whom there nothing can preuaile but wrong.

Nob. Yet hope the best.

Alex. Tis heauen is my hope.
As for the earth it is too much infect,
To yeeld me hope of any of her mould.

Vice. Why linger ye? bring forth that daring friend,
And let him die for his accursed deede.

Alex. Not that I feare the extremitie of death,
(For Nobles cannot stoope to seruile feare)
Doe I (O King) thus discontented liue.

E

But

The Spanish Tragedie.

Bur this, O this tormentes my labouring soule,
That thus I die suspected of a sinne,
Whereof, as heauenus haue knowne my secret thoughtes,
So am I free from this suggestion.

Vice. No more I say; to the tortures, when?
Binde him, and burne his body in thole flames.

They binde him to the stake.

That shall prefigure those vnquenched fires
Of Phlegion, prepared for his soule.

Alex. My guiltlesse death will be auengde on thee,
On thee Villuppo, that hath malisde thus,
Or for thy meede, hast falsely me accusde.

Villup. Nay Alexandro, if thou menace me,
He lende a hand to send thee to the lake
Where those thy wordes shall perish with thy workes:
Iniurious traytour, monstrous homicide.

Enter Embassadour.

Stay, hold a while, and heere with pardon of his Maiestie,
Lay handes vpon Villuppo. (trance?)

Vice Embassadour, what newes hath vrg'd this sodaine en-
Embas. Know Soueraigne I, that Balthazar doth liue.

Vice. What sayest thou? liueth Balthazar our Sonnet?

Embas. Your highnesse Sonnet L. Balthazar doth liue,
And well intreated in the Court of Spaine:

Humbly commendes him to your Maiestie;
These eyes behelde, and these my followers,
With these the Letters of the Kinges commende,

Gives him Letters.

Are happie witnesses of his Highnesse health.

The King looks on the Letters, and proceeses.

Vice. Thy Sonnet doth liue, your Tribute is receiu'd,

Thy Peace is made, and we are satisfide:

The rest resolute vpon, as things propoſe,

For both our honors, and thy benefite.

Embas. These are his Highnesse farther Articles.

He gives him more Letters.

Vice. Accursed wretch to intimate these illes

Against

The Spanish Tragedie.

Against the life and reputation
Of noble Alexandro: come my Lord vnbind him,
Let him vnbind thee, that is bound to death,
To make a quitall for thy discontent.

They vnbinde him.

Alex. Dread Lord, in kindnesse you could do no lesse,
Vpon report of such a damned fact:
But thus we see our innocencie hath saued
The hopelesse life which thou Villuppo tought
By thy suggestions to haue massacred.

Vice. Say false Villuppo, wherefore didst thou thus Falsly betray Lord Alexandroes lie?
Him whom thou knowest, that no vnkindnesse els,
But euen the slaughter of our dearest sonne,
Could once haue mooued vs to haue misconceiued.

Alex. Say treacherous Villuppo, tell the King?
Or wherein hath Alexandro vsed thee ill?

Villup. Rent with remembrance of so foule a deed,
My guiltlesse soule submits me to thy doomes:
For not for Alexandroes iniuries,
But for reward, and hope to be preferred,
Thus haue I shamelesly hazarded his life.

Vice. Which villaine, shalbe ransomed with thy death,
And not so meane a torment as we heere,
Deuide for him, who thou saydst slew our Sonne:
But with the bitterest tormentes and extreames
That may be yet inuented for thine end:

Alex. seems to intreate.

Intreate me not, go take the traytor hence, Exit Vil.

And Alexandro let vs honour thee
With publique notife of thy loyaltie,
To end those thinges articulated heere,
By our great L. the mightie King of Spaine,
We with our Counsell will deliberate.
Come Alexandro, keepe vs companie.

Exunt.

Enter Hieronimo.

Hiero. Oh eyes, no eyes but fountaines fraught with teares,

E 2.

Oh

The Spanish Tragedie.

Oh life, no life; but liuely forme of death;
Oh world, no world but masse of publique wrongs,
Confuide and filde with murder and mildeedes:
Oh Sacred heauens, if this vnhalloved deed,
If this inhumane and barbarous attempt,
If this incomparable murder thus,
Of mine, but now no more my sonne,
Shall vnreuealed and vnreunged passe,
How should we tearme your dealinges to be iust,
If you vniustly deale with those that in your iustice trust.
The night sad secretarie to my mones,
With direfull visions wake my vexed soule,
And with the woundes of my distressfull sonne,
Solicite me for notice of his death.
The ougly seends doe sally forth of hell,
And frame my steps to vntremented pathes,
And teare my heart with fierce inflamed thoughts.
The cloudie day my discontents recorder,
Earely begins to register my dreames,
And driue me forth to seeke the murderer.
Eyes, life, world, heauens, hel, night and day,
See, search, shew, send some man,
Some meane, that may.

A letter falleth.

Whats heere? A letter & tush, it is not so,

A letter written to Hieronimo.

For want of incke, receiue this bloody writ.

Me hath my haples brother hid from thee,

Reuenge thy selfe on Balhazar and him,

For these were they that murdered thy sonne.

Hieronimo, reuenge Horatios death,

And better farre then Bel-imperia doth.

What meanes this vnexpected miracle?

My sonne slaine by Lorenzo, and the Prince.

What cause had they Horatio to maligne?

Or what might moue thee Bel-imperia,

To accuse thy brother, had hee beene the meane?

Hieronimo

The Spanish Tragedie.

Hieronimo beware, thou art betrayde,
And to intrap thy life this traine is laide:
Aduise thee therefore, be not credulous:
This is deuised to endanger thee,
That thou by this Lorenza shouldst accuse,
And he for thy dishonour done, should draw
Thy life in question, and thy name in hate.
Deare was the life of my beloued sonne,
And of his death behoues me be reueng'd;
Then hazard not thine owne Hieronimo,
But liue t'effect thy resolution:
I therefore will by circumstances try
What I can gather, to confirme this writ,
And harkning neare the Duke of Castiles house,
Close if I can with Bel-imperia,
To listen more; but nothing to bewray.

Enter Pedringano.

Hiero. Now Pedringano.

Ped. Now Hieronimo.

Hiero. Wheres thy Lady?

Ped. I know not, heeres my Lord.

Enter Lorenza.

Lor. How now, who's this, Hieronimo?

Hiero. My Lord.

Ped. He asketh for my Lady Bel-imperia.

Lor. What to doe Hieronimo? The Duke my father hath Vpon some disgrace a while remooued her hence:
But if it be ought I may informe her off,
Tell me Hieronimo, and Ile let her know it.

Hiero. Nay, nay my Lord, I thanke you, it shall not need,
I had a sute vnto her, but too late,
And her disgrace makes me vnfortunate.

Lor. Why so Hieronimo? vse me.

Hiero. Who, you my Lord?

I referue your fauour for a greater honor,
This is a very toy my Lord, a toy.

Lor. All's one Hieronimo, acquaint me with it.

E 3.

Hier.

The Spanish Tragedie.

Hiero. Y'fayth my Lord tis an idle thing I must confesse,
I ha'been too slacke, too tardie, too remissie vnto your honor.

Lor. How now Hieronimo?

Hiero. In troth my Lord it is a thing of nothing,
The murder of a Sonne, or so:
A thing of nothing my Lord.

Lor. Why then farewell.

Hier. My griefe no hart, my thoughts no tong can tell. Exit.

Lor. Come hither Pedringano, seelt thou this?

Ped. My Lord I see it, and suspect it too.

Lor. This is that damned villaine Serberine,
That hath (I feare) reueald Horatio's death.

Ped. My Lord he could not, twas so lately done,
And since he hath not left my companie,

Lor. Admit he haue not, his condition's such,
As feare or flattering wordes may make him false.
I know his humour, and therewith repent
That ere I vsde him in this enterprize.

But Pedringano, to preuent the worst,
And cause I know thee secret as my soule,
Heere for thy further satisfaction, take thou this,

Gives him more Gold.

And harken to me: thus it is disguise,
This night thou must, and prethee so resolute,
Meete Serberine at S. Luigis Parke,
Thou know'st tis heere hard by behind the house,
There take thy stand, and see thou strike him sure,
For die he must, if we do meane to liue.

Ped. But how shall Serberine be there my Lord?

Lor. Let me alone, Ile send to him to meete
The Prince and me, where thou must do this deed.

Ped. It shall be done my Lord, it shall be done,
And Ile goe arme my selfe to meete him there.

Lor. When thinges shall alter, as I hope they will,
Then shalt thou mounat for this, thou know'st my minde.

Exit Peda.

Enter

The Spanish Tragedie.

Che le Ieron.

Enter Page.

Lor. Goe sirra to Serberine, and bid him forthwith,
Meete the Prince and me at S. Iungis Parke,
Behinde the house this eueing, Boy.

Page. I goe my Lord.

Lor. But sirra, let the hower be eight a clocke:
Bid him not fayle.

Page. I flie my Lord.

Exit.

Lor. Now to confirme the complot thou hast cast,
Of all these practises, Ile spread the Watch,
Vpon precise commaundement from the King,
Strongly to guard the place where Pedringano
This night shall murder haples Serberine.
This must we worke that will auoyde distrust.
Thus must we practise to preuent mishap,
And thus one ill, another must expulse.
This sly inquiry of Hieronimo for Bel-imperia, breeds suspicion
And this suspicion boades a further ill.
As for my selfe, I know my secret fault,
And so do they, but I haue dealt for them.
They that for Coyne their soules endangered
To saue my life: for Coyne shall venture theirs:
And better tis that base companions die,
Then by their life to hazard our good haps.
Nor shall they liue for me, to feare their fayth:
Ile trust my selfe, my selfe shall be my friend,
For die they shall, flauces are ordaind for no other end. Exit

Enter Pedringano with a Pistoll.

Ped. Now Pedringano bid thy Pistoll hold,
And hold on Fortune, once more fauoure me,
Giue but successe to mine attempting spirit,
And let me shift for taking of mine ayme:
Heere is the Gold, this is the Gold proposde,
It is no dreame that I aduenture for,
But Pedringano is posselt thereof:

And

The Spanish Tragedie.

And he that would not straine his Conscience
For him, that thus his liberall Purse hath stretcht,
Vnworthy such a fauour may he sayles
And wishing, want, when such as I preuaile:
As for the feare of apprehension,
I know (if neede should be) my noble Lord
Will stand betweene me and ensuing harmes.
Besides, this place is free from all suspect:
Heere therefore will I stay, and take my stand.

Enter the Watch.

1 I wonder much to what intent it is,
That we are thus expressly chargde to watch?

2 Tis by commandement in the Kings owne name.

3 But we were neuer woont to watch nor ward
So neare the Duke his house before.

2 Content your selfe, stand close, ther's somewhat in't.

Enter Serberine.

Ser. Heere Serberine attend and stay thy pace,
For heere did Don Lorenzoes Page appoynt,
That thou by his commaund shouldst meete with him:
How fit a place, if one were so disposde,
Meethinkes this corner is, to close with one.

Ped. Heere comes the bird that I must ceaze vpon,
Now Pedringano or neuer, play the man.

Ser. I wonder that his Lordshyp stayes so long,
Or wherefore should he send for me so late?

Ped. For this Serberine, and thou shalt ha't:

Shootes the Dagge.

So, there he lyes; my promise is performde.

The Watch.

1 Harke Gentlemen, this is a Pistoll shot.

2 And heere's one flaine; stay the murderer.

Ped. Now by the sorrowes of the soules in Hell,

He strines with the Watch.

Who first layes hand on me, Ile be his Priest.

3 Sirra, confesse, and therein play the Priest:
Why hast thou thus vnkindly kild the man?

Ped.

The Spanish Tragedie.

Ped. Why? because he walk't abroad so late.

2 Come sir, you had beene better kept your bed,
Then haue committed this misdeede so late.

2 Come, to the Marshals with the murderer.

1 On, to Hieronimo: helpe me here,
To bring the murdered body with vs too.

Ped. Hieronimo, cary me before whom you will,
What ere he be, Ile answere him and you,
And doe you worst, for I defie you all.

Exeunt.

Enter Lorenzo, and Balthazar.

Bal. How now my Lord, what makes you rise so soone?

Lor. Feare of preuenting our mishaps too late.

Bal. What mischief is it that we not mistrust?

Lor. Our greatest illes, we least mistrust my Lord,
And inexpected harmes do hurt vs most.

Bal. Why, tell me Don Lorenzo, tell me man,
If ought concernes our honour, & your owne?

Lor. Not you, nor me, my Lord, but both in one.
For I suspect, and the presumption's great,
That by those base confederates in our fault,
Touching the death of Don Horatio,
We are betraide to old Hieronimo.

Bal. Betrayde, Lorenzo, tush it cannot be.

Lor. A guiltie conscience vrged with the thought,
Of former euils, easily cannot erre:
I am perswaded, and diswade me not,
That all's reuealde to Hieronimo,
And therefore know that I haue cast it thus:
But here's the Page, how now, what newes with thee?

Bal. Who, Serberine my man?

Page. Your Highnes man, my Lord.

Lor. Speake Page, who murdered him?

Page. He that is apprehended for the fact.

Lor. Who?

Page. Pedringano.

Bal. Is Serberine slaine, that loued his Lord so well?

F

In

The Spanish Tragedie.

Iniuriou villaine, murderer of his friend.

Lor. Hath Pedringano murdered Serbarino.
My Lord, let me entreat you to take the paines,
To exasperate and hasten his reuenge,
With your complaints vnto my L. the King.
This their dissention breedes a greater doubt.

Balt. Assure thee Don Lorenzo, he shall die,
Or els his Highnesse hardly shall denie.
Meane while, he haste the Marshall Sessions:
For die he shall for this his damned deed.

Exit Balt.

Lor. Why, so: This fits our former pollicie,
And thus experience bids the wise to deale.
I lay the plot, he prosecutes the point,
I set the trap, he breakes the worthles twigs,
And sees not that wherewith the bird was limde.
Thus hopefull men that meane to hold their owne,
Must looke like Fowlers to their dearest friends.
He runnes to kill whom I haue hope to catch,
And no man knowes it was my reaching fatch.
Tis hard to trust vnto a multitude,
Or any one in mine opinion,
When men themselues their secrets will reueale.

Enter a messenger with a Letter.

Lor. Boy.

Lor. Whats he?

Mes. I haue a Letter to your Lordship.

Lor. From whence?

Mes. From Pedringano that's imprisoned,

Lor. So, he is imprisoned then?

Mes. I, my good Lord.

Lor. What would he with vs?

He writes vs here: To stand good L. and helpe him in distress. &c.
Tell him I haue his Letters, know his minde.
And what we may, let him assure him of.
Fellow, be gone, my Boy shall followe thee.

Exit Mes.
This

The Spanish Tragedie.

This workes like waxe, yet once more trie thy wits,
Boy, goe, conuay this purse to Pedringano,
Thou knowest the prison, closely giue it him:
And be aduise that none be there about.
Bid him be merrie still, but secret:
And though the Marshalls Sessions be to day,
Bid him not doubte of his deliuerie.
Tell him his pardon is already signde,
And thereon bid him boldly be resolued:
For were he ready to be turned off,
As tis my will the vttermost be tride:
Thou with his pardon shalt attend him still,
Shew him this boxe, tell him his pardons in't,
But open't not, and it thou louest thy life:
But let him wisely keepe his hopes vnknowne,
He shall not want while Don Lorenzo liues: away.

Page. I go, Lord, I runne.

Lor. But sweare that this be cleanly done. Exit Page.

Now stand: our fortune on a tickle point,
And now or neuer ends Lorenzoes doubts.
One onely thing is vnaffected yet,
And thats to see the Executioner,
But to what end? I list not trust the ayre
With vtterance of our pretence therein,
For feare the priue whispering of the winde,
Conuey our wordes amongst vnfriendly eares,
That lie too open to aduantages.

Es quel-que voglio Il ne s'en le sa,

Exit.

Enter Boy with the Boxe.

My Maister hath forbidden me to looke in this Boxe, and by my troth tis likely, if he had not warned mee, I should not haue had so much idle time: for we mens-kinde in our minoritie, are like women in their vncertaintie: that, they are most forbidden, they will soonest attempt: so I now, By my bare honestie, heere's nothing but the bare emptie Boxe: were it not

The Spanish Tragedie.

not smile against secrecie, I would say it were a peece of gentleman-like knauerie, I must go to Pedringano, and tel him his pardon is in this boxe: nay, I would haue tworne it, had I not seene the contrarie. I cannot chuse but smile to thinke, how the villaine will flout the gallowes, scorne the audience, and descant on the hang-man: and all presuming of his pardon from hence. Wilt not bee an odde iest, for mee to stand and grace euery iest hee makes, pointing my finger at this boxe as who should say, mocke on, heeres thy warrant. Ist not a scurvie iest, that a man should iest himselfe to death. Alas, poore Pearmingano, I am in a sort sory for thee; but if I should be hanged with thee, I cannot weepe. Exit.

Enter Hieronimo, and the Deputie.

Hiero. Thus must we toile in other mens extreames,
That know not how to remedie our owne:
And doe them iustice, when vniu'ssly we,
For all our wrongs can compasse no redresse.
But shall I neuer liue to see the day,
That I may come by iustice (of the heauens)
To know the cause that may my cares alay?
This toiles my bodie, this consumeth age,
That onely I to all men iust must be,
And neither Gods nor men be I iust to me,

Deputie. Wordy Hieronimo, your office askes
A care to punish such as doe transgresse.

Hiero. So ist my ductie to regard his death,
Who when he liued deserued my dearest blood:
But come, for that we came for, lets begin,
For heere lies that which bids me to be gone.

Enter Officers, Boy, and Pedringano, with a letter in his hand, bound.

Deputie. Bring soorth the prisoner, for the Court is set.

Ped. Gramercie boy: but it was time to come,
For I had written to my Lord anew,
A neerer matter that concerneth him,
For feare his Lordship had forgotten me:
But sith he hath remembred me so well,

Come

The Spanish Tragedie.

Come, come, come on, when shall we to this geere.

Hier. Stand forth thou monster, murderer of men,
And heere for satisfaction of the worlde,
Confesse thy follie, and repent thy fault,
For there's thy place of execution.

Ped. This is short worke; well, to your Marshalship;
First, I confesse, nor feare I death therefore,
I am the man, & was I flew Serberine.
But sir, then you thinke this shall be the place,
Where we shall satisfie you for this geare?

Depu. I, Pedringano.

Ped. Now, I thinke not so.

Hiero. Peace impudent, for thou shalt finde it so.
For blood with blood, shall while I sit as Iudge,
Be satisfied, and the Law dischargde,
And though my selfe cannot receiue the like,
Yet will I see that other haue their right.
Dispatch, the fault approued and confest,
And by our law he is condemn'd to die.

Hang. Come on sir, are you ready?

Ped. To doe what, my fine officious knaue?

Hang. To goe to this geere.

Ped. O sir, you are too forward, thou wouldst faine furnish me with a halter, to disfurnish me of my habit.
So I should goe out of this geere my rayment, into that geere
the rope,
But Hang-man, nowe I spie your knauerie, Ile not chaunge without boot, thats flat.

Hang. Come, Sir.

Ped. So then I must vp.

Hang. No remedie,

Ped. Yes, but there shall be for comming downe.

Hang. Indeed heere's a remedie for that.

Ped. How, be turned off?

Hang. I truely, come, are you readie.

I pray you sir dispatch, the day goes away.

Ped. What doe you hang by the houre, if you doe, I may chance

The Spanish Tragedie.

chance to breake your old custome.

Ham. Faith you haue no reason, for I am like to break your yong necke.

Ped. Doeſt thou mocke me Hang-man, pray God I be not preferred to breake your knaues pate for this.

Hang. Alas, Sir, you are a foote too low to reach it, and I hope you will neuer grow so high while I am in the office.

Ped. Sirra, doeſt ſee yonder boy with the Boxe in his hand?

Hang. What he that pointes to it with his finger,

Ped. I, that companion.

Hang. I know him not, but what of him?

Ped. Doeſt thou thinke to liue till his olde doublet will make thee a new trusse?

Hang. I, and many a faire yeere after, to trusse vp many an honeſter man then either thou or he.

Ped. What hath he in his boxe as thou thinkeſt?

Hang. Faith, I cannot tell, nor I care not greatly. Me thinke you ſhould rather hearken to your ſoules health.

Ped. Why, Sirra, Hang-man, I take it, that that is good for the body, is likewise good for the ſoule: and it may bee in that boxe is balme for both.

Hang. Wel, thou art euen the merriest peece of mans flesh that ere gronde at my office doore.

Ped. Is your roagarie become an office with a knaues name?

Hang. I, and that shall all they witnes, that ſee you ſeale it with a thecues name.

Ped. I prethee, requſt this good company to pray for me.

Hang. I mary, ſir, this is a good motion to my maſters, you ſee heeres a good fellow.

Ped. Nay, nay, now I remember me, let them alone til ſome other time, for now I haue no great neede.

Hiera. I haue not ſeene a wrrch ſo impudent.

O monſtrous times where murder's ſet ſo light,
And where the ſoule that ſhould be ſhrinde in heauen,
Solely delights in interdicted things.
Still wandring in the thornie paſſages,

That

The Spanish Tragedie.

That intercepts it selfe of happinesse,
Murder, O bloody monster, God forbid,
A fault so foule should scape unpunished.
Dispatch, and see the execution done,
This makes me to remember thee my sonne.

Exit Hier.

Ped. Nay soft, no haste,

Depu. Why, wherefore stay you, haue you hope of life?

Ped. Why, I.

Hang. As how?

Ped. Why, Rascall, by my pardon from the king,

Hang. Stand you on that, then you shall off with this.

He turnes him off.

Depu. So executioner conuay him hence,
But let his bodie be vnburied.

Let not the earth be choaked or infect,

With that which heauen contemnes and men negle&.

Exeunt.

Enter Hieronimo.

Where shall I runne to breath abroad my woes,
My woes, whose weight hath wearied the earth?
Or mine exclames that haue surcharg'd the aire,
With ceasles plaintes for my deceased sonne?
The blustering windes conspiring with my wordes,
At my lament haue moued the leaueles trees.
Disrobde the medowes of their flowred greene,
Made mountaines marsh with spring tide of my teares,
And broken through the brasen gates of hell,
Yet still tormented is my tortured soule,
With broken fighes and restles passions,
That winged mout, and houering in the aire,
But at the windowes of the brightest heauens,
Solliciting for iustice and reuenge:
But they are plac't in those imperiall heightes.
Where countermurde with walles of diamond,
I finde the place impregnable: and they
Resist my woes, and giue my wordes no way.

Enter

The Spanish Tragedie.

Enter Hang-man With a letter.

Han. O Lord sir, God bleſſe you ſir, the man ſir, Petergade,
Sir, he that was ſo full of merry conceits.

Hier. Well, What of him?

Hang. O Lord ſir, he went the wrong way, the fellowe had a faire commiſſion to the contrary. Sir heere is his paſ-port, I pray you ſir we haue done him wrong.

Hier. I warrant thee, giue it me.

Hang. You will ſtand betweene the gallowes and me.

Hier. I, I.

Hier. And yet though ſomewhat nearer me concernes.

I will to eaſe the griefe that I ſuſteine,

Take truce with ſorrow while I read on this.

My Lord, I write, as my extreames requirde,

That you Would labour my deliuerie;

If you neglect, my life is deſperate,

And in my death I ſhall reueale the troth.

You know, my Lord, I ſlew him for your ſake,

And was conſeſerate with the prince and you,

Wonne by rewardes, and hopefull promiſes,

I holpe to murder Don Horatio too.

Holpe he to murder mine Horatio,

And actors in th'accuſed Tragedie.

Waiſt thou Lorenzo, Balthazar and thou,

Of whom my ſonne my ſonne deſerued ſo well.

What haue I heard, what haue mine eyes beheld?

O Sacred heauens, may it come to paſſe,

That ſuch a monſtrous and deteſted deed,

So cloſely ſmothered, and ſo long conceald,

Shall thus by this be venged or reueald,

Now ſee I what I durſt not then ſuſpect,

That Bel-imperius letter was not fainde,

Nor ſained ſhe though falſely they haue wrongde,

Both her, my ſelfe, Horatio, and themſelues.

Now may I make compare twixt hers and this,

O euery accedent, I neere could finde,

Till

The Spanish Tragedie.

Till now, and now I feelingly perceiue
They did what heauen vnpunisht would not leaue.
O false Lorenzo, are these thy flattering lookes?
Is this the honour that thou dost my sonne?
And Balthazar, bane to thy soule and me,
Was this the ranfome he reteru'd thee for?
Woe to the cause of these constrained warres,
Woe to thy basenes and captiuitie,
Woe to thy birth, thy bodie, and thy soule,
Thy cursed father, and thy conquered selfe:
And band with bitter execrations be,
The day and place where he did pittie thee:
But wherefore waste I mine vnfruitfull wordes?
When naught but blood will satisfie my woes:
I wil go plaine me to my Lord the King,
And cry aloude for iustice through the court.
Wearing the flintes with these my withered feete,
And eicher purchase iustice by intreates,
Or tyre them all with my reuenging threats. Exit.

Enter Isabella and her maid.

Isa. So that you say, this herbe will purge the eye,
And this the head, ah, but none of them will purge the heart:
No, ther's no medicine left for my disease,
Nor any physicke to recure the dead:

She runs lunaticke.

Horatio. O wher's Horatio.

Maid. Good madame, affright not thus your selfe,
With out-rage for your sonne Horatio.
He sleepes in quiet in thee Elysian fields.

Isa. Why did I not giue you gownes and goodly things,
Bought you a whistle and a whistalke too:
To be reuenged on their villainies.

Maid. Maddame, these humours do torment my soule,

Isa. My soule, poore soule thou talkes of things
Thou knowest not what, my soule hath siluer wings,
That mounts me vp vnto the highest heauens.
To heauen, I there sit my Horatio.

G

Baskt

The Spanish Tragedie.

Backe with a troupe of fierie Cherubines,
Dauncing about his newly healed woundes,
Singing sweet hymnes and chanting heauenly notes,
Rare harmonie to greet his innocencie,
That liudes I, dide, a mirrour in our dayes.
But say, where shall I finde the men, the murderers,
That slew Horatio? whither shall I runne
To finde them out, that murdered my sonne? Exeunt.

Bel-imperia, at a window.

Bel. What meanes this outrage that is offered me?
Why am I thus sequestred from the Court?
No notice: shall I not know the cause
Of this my secret and suspicious ill.
Accursed brother, vnkinde murderer,
Why bends thou thus thy minde to martir me?
Hieronimo, why write I of thy wrongs?
Or why art thou so slacke in thy reuenge?
Andrea, O Andrea, that thou sawest
Me, for thy friend Horatio handled thus,
And him for me, thus causeles murdered.
Well, force perforce, I must constraime my selfe
To patience, and applie me to the time,
Till heauen (as I haue hoped) shall set me free.

Enter Christophil.

Christ. Come, Madame Bel-imperia, this may not be. Exeunt.

Enter Lorenzo, Balthazar, and the Page.

Lor. Boy, talke no further, thus farre things go well,
Thou art assured that thou sawest him dead?

Page. Or els, my Lord, I liue not.

Lor. That's enough.

As for his resolution in his ende,
Leaue that to him with whom he sojourns now.
Heere take my Ring, and giue it Christophill,
And bid him let my Sister be enlargde,
And bring her hither straight.
Thus that I did was for a policie,

Exit Page.

T.

The Spanish Tragedie.

To smooth and keepe the murther secret,
Which at a nine daies wonder being ore-blowne,
My gentle sister will I now enlarge.

Bal. And time, Lorenzo, for my Lord the Duke,
You heard inquired for her yester-night.

Lor. Why, and my Lord, I hope you heard me say,
Sufficient reason, why she kept away:
But that's all one, my Lord, you loue her?

Bal. I.

Lor. Then in your loue beware, deale cunningly,
Salue all suspitions, onely sooth me vp.
And if she hap to stand on tearmes with vs:
As for her sweet-heart, and concealement so,
Iest with her gently vnder fained Iest,
Are things concaelde that els would breed vnrest.
But heere she comes.

Enter Bel-imperia.

Lor. Now, Sister.

Bel. Sister: No, thou art no brother, but an enemy:
Els wouldst thou not haue vsed thy sister so.
First to affright me with thy weapons drawne,
And with extreames abuse my company:
And then to hurrie me like whirle-winds rage,
Amidst a cruell of thy confederates:
And clap me vp where none might come at me,
Nor I at any, to reueale my wrongs.
What madding furie did possesse thy wits
Or wherein ist that I offended thee?

Lor. Aduise you better Bel-imperia,
For I haue done you no disparagement:
Vnlesse by more discretion then deserued,
I sought to saue your honour and mine owne.

Bel. Mine honour, why, Lorenzo, wherein ist,
That I negle& my reputation so,
As you, or any neede to rescue it?

Lor. His highnesse, and my father were resolu'd,
To come conferre with old Hieronimo,

G 2

Con

The Spanish Tragedie.

Concerning certaine matters of estate,
That by the Vice-roy was determined,

Bel. And wherein was mine honour toucht in that?

Bel. Haue patience Bel-imperia, heare the rest.

Lor. Me next in fight as messenger they sent,
To giue him notice that they were so nigh:
Now when I came, consoorted with the Prince,
And vnexpected in an Arbour there,
Found Bel-imperia with Horatio.

Bel. How then?

Lor. Why then remembring that old disgrace,
Which you for Dan Andrea had indurde,
And now were likely longer to susteine,
By being found so meanelly accompanied.
Thought rather (for I know no readier meane,)
To thrust Horatio forth my fathers way.

Bel. And carrie you obscurely some-where els,
Least that his Highnes should haue found you there.

Bel. Euen so my Lord, and you are witnes,
That this is true which he entreareth of.
You (gentle brother forged this for my sake,
And you, my Lord, were made his instrument:
A worke of woorth, worthy the nooting too.
But what's the cause that you conceald me since?

Lor. Your melancholy, Sister, since the newes,
Of your first fauourite Dan Andreas death,
My fathers old wrath hath exasperate.

Bel. And better wast for you being in disgrace,
To consent your selfe, and giue his furie place.

Bel. But why had I no notice of his ire?

Lor. That were to adde more fiewell to the fire,
Who burnt like Atina, for Andreas losse.

Bel. Had not my father then enquired for me?

Lor. Sister, he hath, and thus exculde I thee.

He whispereth in her eare.

For Bel-imperia, see the gentle Prince,
Looke on thy loue, behold yong Balthazar.

Whose

The Spanish Tragedie.

Whose passions by thy presence are increast,
And in whose melancholy thou maiest see,
Thy hate, his loue : thy flight, his following thee.

Bel. Brother, you are become an Oratur,
I know not I, by what experience.

Too pollicicke for me, past all compare,
Since last, I saw you : but content your selfe,
The Prince is meditating higher things.

Bel. Tis of thy beautie then, that conquers kings,
Of those thy tresses Ariadnes twines,
Wherewith my libertie thou hast surprisde,
Of that thine iuorie front my sorrowes map,
VVherein I see no Haue to rest my hope.

Bel. To loue, and feare, and both at once my Lord.
In my conceite, are things of more import
Then womens wits are to be busied with.

Bel. Tis I that loue.

Bel. VVhom ?

Bel. Bel-imperia.

Bel. But I that feare.

Bel. VVhom ?

Bel. Bel-imperia.

Lor. Feare you your selfe ?

Bel. I Brother,

Lor. How ?

Bel. As those, that when they loue, are loath, and feare to

Bel. Then Faire, let Balthazar your keeper be,

Bel. Balthazar doth feare as well as we.

Est tremulo me in pauidam iunxere timorem,

Est uanum stolidæ proditoris opus.

Exit.

Lor. Nay, and you argue things so cunningly,

VVeele goe continue this discourte at court.

Bel. Led by the lead-starre of her heauenly lookes,

VVends poore oppressed Balthazar,

As ore the mountaines walkes the wanderer,

Incertaine to effect his Pilgrimage.

Exeunt.

Enter

The Spanish Tragedie.

Enter two Portingales, and Hieronimo meets them.

2 By your leaue sir.

Hie. Tis neither as you thinke, nor as you thinke,
Nor as you thinke: you'r wide all:
These slippers are not mine, they were my sonne Horatio,
My sonne, and what's a sonne?
A thing begot within a pake of minutes, there about:
A lumpie bred vp in darkenesse, and doth serue
To ballace these light creatures we call Women:
And at nine moneths ende, creepes soorth to light.
What is there yet in a sonne?
To make a father dote, rane, or runne mad.
Being borne, it poutes, cryes, and breeds teeth.
What is there yet in a sonne? He must be fed,
Be taught to goe, and speake I, or yet,
Why might not a man loue a Calfe as well?
Or melt in passion ore a frisking Kid,
As for a sonne, me thinkes a young Bacon,
Or a fine little smooth Horse-colt
Should moue a man, as much as doth a sonne.
For one of these in very little time,
Will grow to some good vse, where as a sonne,
The more he growes in stature and in yeeres,
The more vnsguard, vnbeuelled he appears,
Rececons his parents among the rancke of fooles,
Strikes care vpon their heads with his mad ryots.
Makes them looke olde, before they meet with age:
This is a sonne: And what a losse were this, considered truly.
O but my Horatio, grew out of reach of these
Insatiate humours: He loued his louing parents,
He was my comfort, and his mothers ioy,
The very arme that did holde vp our house,
Our hopes were stored vp in him.
None but a damned murderer could hate him:
He had not seene the backe of nineteene yeere,
When his strong arme vnhorst the proud Prince Balthazar,
And his great minde too full of Honour,

Tooke

The Spanish Tragedie.

Tooke him vs to mercy, that valiant, but ignoble Portingale.
Well, heauen is heauen still,
And there is Nemesis and Furies,
And things called whippes,
And they sometimes doe meete with murderers,
They doe not alwayes scape, that's some comfort.
1, 1, 1, and then time steales on : and steales, and steales
Till violence leapes foroth like thunder
Wrapt in a ball of fire,
And so doth bring confusion to them all.
Good leaue haue you : nay, I pray you goe,
For Ile leaue you, if you can leaue me, soe.

2 Pray you which is the way to my L. the Dukes.

Hic. The next way from me.

2 To his house we meane.

Hic. O, hard by, tis yon house that ye see.

2 You could not tell vs if his sonne were there?

Hic. Who, my Lord, Lorenco.

2 I, sir.

He goes in at one dore, and comes out at another.

Hic. Oh, forbear, for other talke for vs farre fitter were.

But if you be importunate to know,
The way to him, and where to finde him out,
Then list to me, and Ile resolue your doubt,
There is a path vpon your left hand side,
That leadeth from a guiltie Conscience,
Vnto a Forrest of distrust and feare,
A darke some place and dangerous to passe,
There shall you meet with melancholy thoughts,
Whose balefull humours if you but vphold,
It will conduct you to dispaire and death :
Whose rockie chiffes, when you haue once beheld,
Within a hugie dale of lasting night,
That kindled with the worlds iniquities,
Doth cast vp filthy and detested fumes.
Not farre from thence where murderers haue built,

A habi,

The Spanish Tragedie.

A habitation for their cursed soule :
There, in a brazen Caldron fixt by Ioue,
In his fell wrath vpon a sulphur flame :
Your selues shall finde Lorenzo bathing him,
In boyling lead and blood of innocents.

1 Ha, ha, ha.

Hier. Ha, ha, ha : why ha, ha, ha. Forwell good ha, ha, ha.

Exit.

2 Doublesse this man is passing lunaticke,
Or imperfection of his age doth make him dore.
Come, lets away, to seeke my Lord the Duke. Exeunt.

Enter Hieronimo with a paynard in one hand, and a rope in the other.

Hiero. Now sir, perhaps, I come and see the king,
The king sees me, and faine would heare my sute.
Why is not this a strange, and feld scene thing,
That standers by, with toyes should strike me mute.
Goe too, I see their shifts and say no more,
Hieronimo, tis time for thee to trudge,
Downe by the dale that flowes with purple gore,
Standeth a fire Tower : there sits a iudge,
Vpon a seat of Steele and molten brasse :
And twixt his teeth he holdes a firebrand,
That leades vnto the lake where hell doth stand.
Away Hieronimo, to him begon :
Heele doe thee iustice for Horatios death.
Turne downe this path, thou shalt be with him straights,
Or this, and then thou needst not take thy breath.
This way, or that way : soft and faire, not so,
For if I hang or kill my selfe, lets know
Who will reuenge Horatios murder then ?
No, no, sic, no : pardon me, Ile none of that.

He flings away the dagger and halter.

This way Ile take, and this way comes the King.

He takes them vp againe.

And heere Ile haue a fling at him that's flat.
And Balthazar, Ile be with thee to bring.

And

The Spanish Tragedie.

And thee, Lorenzo, heere's the King, nay stay,
And heere, I heere: there goes the hare away.

Enter King, Embassadour, Castile, and Lorenzo.

King. Now shew Embassadour what our Vice-roy faith,
Hath he receiu'd the Articles we sent?

Hier. Iustice, O iustice to Hieronimo.

Lor. Backe, seest thou not the King is busie?

Hier. O, is he so?

King. Who is he that interrupts our busines?

Hier. Not I: Hieronimo be ware, goe by, goe by.

Embaf. Renowned King, he hath receiued, and read:

Thy kingly proffers, and thy promist league:

And as a man extreamely ouer-ioy'd,

To heare his sonne so princelie entertain'd,

Whole death he had so solemnly bewail'd.

This for thy further satisfaction,

And Kinglie loue, he kindly lets thee know:

First, for the marriage of his princelie sonne,

With Bel-imperia thy beloued Neece,

The newes are more delightfull to his soule,

Then Myrrh or Incense to the offended heauens.

In person therefore will he come himselfe,

To see the marriage rites solemnized,

And in the presence of the court of Spaine,

To knite a sure inexplicable band,

Of Kingly loue, and euerlasting league,

Betwixt the Crownes of Spaine and Portingale.

There will he giue his Crowne to Balthazar,

And make a Queene of Bel-imperia.

King. Brother, how like you this our Vice-royes loue?

Cast. No doubtr, my Lord, it is an argument

Of honourable care to keepe his friend,

And wonderous zeale to Balthazar his sonne:

Nor am I least indebted to his Grace,

That bends his likeing to my daughter thus.

Emb. Now last (dread Lord) heere hath his Highnes sent,

Although he send not that his sonne returne,

H

His

The Spanish Tragedie.

His ranfome due to Don Horatio,

Hier. Horatio, who calles Horatio ?

King. And well remembred, thanke his Maieftie:
Heere lee it giuen to Horatio.

Hier. Iuftice, O iuftice, iuftice gentle King.

King. Who is that ? Hieronimo.

Hiero. Iuftice, O iuftice : O my fonne, my fonne,
My fonne, whom naught can ranfome or redeeme.

Lor. Hieronimo, you are not well aduifed.

Hiero. Away Lorenzo, hinder me no more,
For thou haft made me bankrupt of my bliffe:
Giue me my fonne, you fhall not fanfome him.
Away, Ile rip the bowels of the earth,

He diggeth with his Dagger.

And ferrie ouer to th<sup>e</sup> Elizian plaines,
And bring my Sonne to shew his deadly woundes.
Stand from about me, Ile make a Pickaxe of my Poniard,
And heere furrender vp my Marshallship:
For Ile go marshall vp the Fecendes in hell,
To be auenged on you all, for this.

Kin. What meanes this outrage? will none of you reftreine his furie.

Hiero. Nay foft and faire, you fhall not need to ftirue, Needes muft he go that the duels driue. Exit.

King. What accident hath hapt to Hieronimo?
I haue not feene him to demeane him fo.

Lor. My gracious Lord, he is with extreame pride,
Conceiued of young Horatio his Sonne,
And couctous of hauing to himfelfe,
The ranfome of the young Prince Balthazar,
Diftract, and in a manner lunaticke.

King. Belecue me Nephew we are forie fort,
This is the loue that Fathers beare their Sonnes:
But gentle brother, go giue to him this gold,
The Princes ranfome, let him haue his due,
For what he hath Horatio fhall not want,
Happely Hieronimo hath need thereof,

Lor.

The Spanish Tragedie.

Lor. But if he be thus hapleslie distract,
Tis requisite his office be resignde,
And giuen to one of more discretion.

King. We shall increase his melancholy so,
Tis best we see further in it first:
Till when, our selfe will exempt the place,
And brother, now bring in the Embassadour,
That he may be a witnesse of the match
Twixt Balthazar and Bel-imperia,
And that we may prefixe a certaine time,
Wherein the Marriage shalbe solemnized,
That we may haue thy Lord the Vice-roy heere.

Emb. Therein your highnesse highly shall content
His Maiestie, that longes to heare from hence.

King. On then, and heare your Lord Embassadour. Exeunt.
Enter Iaques and Pedro.

Iaq. I wonder Pedro, why our Maister thus
At midnight sendes vs with our Torches light,
When man and bird and beast are all at rest,
Sauce those that watch for rape and bloody murder?

Pea. O Iaques, know thou that our Maisters minde
Is much distraught since his Horatio dyed,
And now his aged yeeres should sleepe in rest,
His hart in quiet, like a desperat man,
Growes lunaticke and childish for his Sonne:
Sometimes as he doth at his table sit
He speakes as if Horatio stood by him,
Then starting in a rage, falles on the earth,
Cryes out Horatio, Where is my Horatio?
So that with extreame griefe and cutting sorrow,
There is not left in him one ynoch of man:
See where he comes.

Enter Hieronimo.

Here. I prie through euery creuie of each wall,
Looke on each tree, and search through euery brake,
Beet at the bushes, stampe our grandam earth,
Dive in the water, and stare vp to heauen,

H 2.

Yee

The Spanish Tragedie.

Yet cannot I behold my sonne Horatio,
How now, Who's there, spirits, spirits?

Ped. We are your seruants that attend you sir.

Hic. What make you with your torches in the darke.

Ped. You bid vs light them, and attend you here.

Hier. No, no, you are deceiu'd, not I, you are deceiu'd,
Was I so mad to bid you light your torches now,
Light me your torches at the mid of noone,
When as the Sun-God rides in all his glorie:
Light me your torches then;

Ped. Then we burne day light.

Hic. Let it be burnt, night is a murderous slut,
That would not haue her treasons to be scene,
And yonder pale faced Hee-cat there, the Moone,
Doth giue consent to that is done in darkenlie,
And all those Starres that gaze vpon her face,
Are aggots on her sleeue, pins on her traine,
And thole that should be powerfull and diuine,
Doe sleepe in darkenes when they most should shine.

Ped. Prouoke them not faire sir, with tempting words,
The heauens are gracious, and your miseries and sorow,
Makes you speake you know not what.

Hic. Villaine, thou liest, and thou doest nought
But tell me I am mad, thou liest, I am not mad.
I know thee to be Pedro, and he Jaques,
He prooue it to thee, and were I mad, how could I?
Where was she that same night when my Hor. was mured?
She should haue shone: Search thou the booke, (grace
Had the Moone shone, in my boyes face (there was a kind of
That I know) nay, I doe know, had the murderer scene him,
His weapon would haue fall'n and cut the earth,
Had he been frained of naught but blood and death.
Alacke when mitchiete doth it knowes not what,
What shall we say to mitchiete?

Enter Isabella.

Is. Deare Hieronimo, come in a doores.
O, seeke not means so to encrease thy sorrow,

Hier. In-

The Spanish Tragedie.

Hier. Indeed, Isabella we doe nothing heere,
I doe not cry, alke Pedro and alke Inques,
Not I indeed, we are very merrie, very merrie.

Isa. How, be merrie heere, be merrie heere.
Is not this the place, and this the very tree,
Where my Horatio hied, where he was murdered?

Hier. Was, doe not lay whatt let her weepe it out,
This was the tree, I set it of a kiernbell,
And when our hot Spaine could not let it grow
But that the infant and the humaine sap
Began to wither, duly twice a morning,
Would I be sprinkling it with fountaine water.
At last it grewe, and grewe, and bore and bore,
Till at the length it grew a gallowes, and did beare our sonne.
It bore thy fruit and mine: O wicked, wicked plant.

One knockes within at the doore.

See who knocke there.

Pedro. It is a painter sir.

Hie. Bid him come in, and paint some comfort,
For surely there's none liues but painted comfort.
Let him come in, one knowes not what may chance,
Gods will, that I should set this tree,
But euen so masters, vngratefull seruants reare from nought,
And then they hate them that did bring them vp.

Enter the Painter.

Paint. God blesse you sir.

Hie. Wherefore, why, thou scornfull villaine.
How, where, or by what meanes should I be blest,

Isa. What wouldst thou haue good fellow.

Paint. Iustice, Madame.

Hie. O ambitious begger, wouldst thou haue that
That liues not in the world,
Why all the vndelued mynes cannot buy
An ounce of iustice, tis a iewel so inestimable:
I tell thee, God hath engrossed all iustice in his hands,
And there is none, but what comes from him. (sonne

Pat. O then I see that God must right me for my murdered

The Spanish Tragedie.

Hic. How, was thy sonne murdered?

Pain. I, sir, no man did hold a sonne so deere.

Hic. What not as thine? that's a lie,

As massie as the earth I had a sonne,
Whose least vnuallued haire did waigh
A thousand of thy sonnes: and he was murdered.

Pain. Alas, sir, I had no more but he,

Hic. Nor I, nor I: but this same one of mine,
Was worth a legion: but all is one.

Pedro, Iaques, goe in a doores, Isabella goe.

And this good fellow heere and I,
Will range this hidious orchard vp and downe,
Like to two Lyons reaued of their yong.

Goe in a doores, I say.

Exeunt.

The Painter and he sit downe.

Come let's talke wisely now:

Was thy sonne murdered?

Pain. I, sir.

Hic. So was mine.

How dost thou take it: art thou not sometimes mad?

Is there no trickes that comes before thine eies?

Pain. O Lord, yes sir.

Hic. Art a Painter? canst paint me a teare, or a wound,
A groane, or a sigh? canst paint me such a tree as this?

Paint. Sir, I am sure you haue heard of my painting, my name's Bazardo.

Hic. Bazardo, afore-god, an excellent fellow. Look you sir,
Doe you see, I haue you paint me my Gallie
In your oile colours matted, and draw me five Yeetes youger then I am. Doe ye see sir, let five
Yeeres goe, let them goe like the Marshall of Spaine.
My wife Isabella standing by me,

With a speaking looke to my sonne Heratio.

Which should enter in to this, or some such like purpose:

God blesse thee, my sweet soane and my hand leaning vpon his head, thus sir, doe you see may it be done?

Pain. Very well sir.

Hic. Nay,

The Spanish Tragedie.

Hier. Nay, I pray marke me, sir. Then sir, would I haue you paint me this tree, this very tree.

Canst paint a dolefull crie?

Paint. Seemingly, sir,

Hier. Nay, it should crie: but all is one.

Well sir, paint me a youth, run thorow and thorow with villaines swords, hanging vpon this tree.

Canst thou draw a murderer?

Painter. He warrant you sir,

I haue the patterne of the most notorious willaines that euer
liued in all Spaine.

Hier. O, let them be worse, worse: stretch thine Arte,
And let their beardes be of Iudas his owne collour,

And let their cie-browes iuttie ouertin any case obserue that.

Then sir, after some violent noyse,

Bring mee foorth in my shirt, and my gowne vnder myne arme, with my torch in my hand, and my sword reared vp thus: and with these wordes.

What noyse is this? Who call? Hieronimo?

May it be done?

Painter. Yea, sir.

Well sir, then bring mee foorth, bring mee thorow allie and allye, still with a distracted countenance going a long,
and let my haire heaue vp my night-cap.

Let the clowdes scowle, make the Moone darke, the Starres extinct, the Windes blowing, the Belles towling, the Owle shrieking, the Toades croking, the Minutes ier-
ing, and the Clocke striking twelue.

And then at last, sir, starting, behold a man hanging: And tottering, and tottering as you know the winde will weade
a man, and I with a trise to cut him downe.

And looking vpon him by the aduantage of my torch, finde
it to be my sonne Horatio.

There you may a passion, there you may shew a passion.

Drawe mee like old Priam of Troy,

Crying, the house is a fire, the house is a fire

As the torch ouer my head. Make me curse,

Make

The Spanish Tragedie.

Make me raue, make me cry, make me mad,
Make me well againe, make me curse hell,
Inuocate heauen, and in the ende, leaue me
In a traunce, and so forth.

Pain. And is this the end.

Hic. O no, there is no end: the end is death and madnesse,
As I am neuer better then when I am mad,
Then methinkes I am a braue fellow,
Then I doe wonders: But reason abuseth me,
And there's the torment, there's the hell.
At the last, sir, bring me to one of the murderers,
Were he as strong as Hector, thus would I
Teare and drage him vp and downe.

*He beates the Painter in, then comes out againe
With a Booke in his hand.*

Vindicta mihi.

I, heauen will be reueng'd of euery ill,
Nor will they suffer murder vnrepaid:
Then stay, Hieronimo, attend their will,
For mortall men may not appoiat a time.

Per scelus semper tutum est sceleribus iter.

Strike, and strike home, where wrong is offered thee,
For euils vnto ils conducters be,
And death's the worst of resolution:
For he that thinkes with patience to contend
To quiet life, his life shall easily end.

Fata si miseros iuuant habes salutem.

Fata si vitam negant, habes sepulchrum.

If Destinie thy miseries doe ease,
Then hast thou health, and happy shalt thou be.
If Destinie deny thee life Hieronimo,
Yet shalt thou be assured of a tombe:
If neither, yet let this thy comfort be,
Heauen couereth him that hath no buriall:
And to conclude, I will reuenge his death,
But how? not as the vulgar wits of men,
With open, but inuitable ils:

As

The Spanish Tragedie.

As by a secret, yet a certaine meane,
Which vnder kindship will be cloaked best.
Wise men will take their oppertunitie,
Closely, and safely fitting things to time,
But in extreames vantage hath no time.
And therefore all times fit not for reuenge;
Thus therefore will I rest me in ynrest,
Dissembling quiet in vnquietnesse,
Not seeming that I know their villanies,
That my simplicitie may make them thinke,
That ignorantly, I will let it slip;
For ignorance I wot, and well they know,

Remedium malorum iners est.

Nor ought auayles it me to menace them.
Who, as a wintrie storme vpon a plaine,
Will beare me downe with their nobilitie.
No, no, Hieronimo: thou must enioyne
Thine eies to obseruation, and thy tongue
To milder speeches, then thy spirits afforde,
Thy heart to patience, and thy hands to rest,
Thy Cappe to curtesie, and thy knee to bowe,
Till to reuenge, thou know when, where, and how.

A noise within.

How now, what noise? what coile is that you keepe?

Enter a Seruant.

Ser. Heere are a sort of poore Pettitioners,
That are importunate, and it shall please you sir,
That you should plead their cases to the King.

He. That I should plead their seuerall Actions;
Why let them enter, and let me see them.

Enter three Citizens, and an olde man.

1 So, I tell you this, for learning and for law,
Ther's not any Aduocate in Spaine,
That can preuaile, or will take halfe the paine,
That he will in pursuit of equitie.

He. Come neere, you men that thus importune me.
Now must I beare a face of grauitie:

I

For

The Spanish Tragedie.

For this I vnde before my Marshallship,
To plead in causes as Corrigedoy.
Come on sirs, whats the matter?

2 Sir, an Action.

Hiero. Of Batterief

1 Mine of Debr.

Hiero. Giue place.

2 No sir, mine is an action of the Case.

3 Mine an Eiection firma by a Lease.

Hiero. Content you sirs, are you determined
That I should plead your feuerall actions?

1 I sir, and heere's my Declaration.

2 And heere is my Band.

3 And heere is my Lease.

They giue him Papers.

Hiero. But wherefore stand you sillie man so mute,
With mournesfull eyes and handes to heauen vpreard?
Come hither Father, let me know thy cause?

Senix. O worthy sir, my cause but slightly knowne,
May moue the hartes of warlike Myrmidons,
And melt the corsicke Rockes with ruthfull teares.

Hiero. Say Father, tell me what's thy sute?

Senix. No sir, could my woes
Giue way vnto my most distresfull wordes,
Then should I not in Paper, as you see,
with Incke bewray, what blood began in mee.

Hiero. What's heere? The humble Supplication
Of Don Bazulto for his murdered Sonne?

Senix. I sir.

Hiero. No sir, it was my murdered Sonne, Oh my sonne,
Oh my sonne, oh my sonne Horatio:
But mine, or thine, Bazulto be content,
Heere take my Handkercher and wipe thine eyes,
Whiles wretched I, in thy mishappes may see,
Theliuely portraict of my dying selfe.

He draweth out a bloody Napkin.

O no not this, Horatio this was thine,
And when I did it in thy dearest blood,

This

The Spanish Tragedie.

This was a token twixt thy soule and me,
That of thy death reuenged I should be.
But heere, take this, and this : what my purse?
I this, and that, and all of them are thine :
For all as one, are our extremities.

1 Oh, see the kindnesse of Hieronimo,
This gentlenesse shewes him a Gentleman.

Hiero. See, see, oh see thy shame Hieronimo,
See heere a louing Father to his sonnet
Behold the sorrowes and the sad lamentes,
That he deliuered for his Sonnes deceasse.
If loue effectes to strives in lesser thinges,
If loue enforce such moodes in meaher wits,
If loue expresse such power in poore estates:

Hieronimo, when as a raging Sea,
Tost with the winde and tyde ore turnest then
The vpper billowes course of waues to keepe,
Whilest lesser waters labour in the deepe
Then shamest thou not Hieronimo to neglect
The swift reuenge of thy Horatio?
Though on this earth iustice wil not be found:
He downe to Hell, and in this passion
Knocke at the dismall gates of Plutos Court,
Getting by force as once Alcidas,
A troupe of Furies and tormenting Hagges,
To torture Don Lorenzo and the rest :
Yet least the triple headed Porter should
Deny my passage to the slymie strond,
The Thracian Poet thou shalt counterfeite:
Come olde Father, be my Orpheus,
And if thou canst no notes vpon the Harpe,
Then sound the burden of the sore hartes grieve,
Till we do gaine that Proserpine may graunt,
Reuenge on them that murdered my Sonne.
Then will I rent and teare them thus, and thus,
Shiuering their limmes in peeces with my teeth.

Teare the papers.

1 Oh

The Spanish Tragedie.

1 Oh, sir, my declaration.

Exit Hieronimo, and they after.

2 Saue my bond.

Enter Hieronimo.

2 Saue my bound.

3 Alas, my Lease, it cost me ten pound,
And you, my Lord, haue torne the same.

Hie. That cannot be, I gaue them neuer a wound,
Shew me one drop of blood fall from the same :
How is it possible I should slay it then ?
Tush no, runne after, catch me if you can.

Exeunt all but the old man.

Bazulto remains till Hieronimo enters againe, who staring him in the face, speaketh.

Hier. And art thou come, Horatio from the depth,
To aske for iustice in this vpper earth ?
To tell thy father thou art vnreuengde,
To wring more teares from Isabellas eyes :
Whose lights are dim'd with ouer-long laments.
Goe backe my sonne, complaine to Eacus,
For heere's no iustice, gentle boy be gone :
For iustice is exiled from the earth.
Hieronimo will beare thee companie.
Thy mother cries on righteous Rahamant,
For iust reuenge against the murderers.

Senex. Alas, my L. whence springs this troubled speech ?

Hie. But let me looke on my Horatio :
Sweet Boy, art thou chang'd in deaths blacke shade ?
Had Proserpine, no pittie on thy youth ?
But suffered thy faire crimson coloured spring,
With withered winter to be blasted thus ?
Horatio, thou art older then thy father :
Ah, ruthlesse father, that fauour thus transformes.

Baz. Ah, my good L. I am not your yong sonne.

Hie. What, not my sonne? thou then a furie art,
Sent from the emptie kingdome of blacke night,
To semmon me to make appearence

Before

The Spanish Tragedie.

Before grim Minos and iust Radamant.
To plague Hieronimo, that is remisse,
And seekes not vengeance for Horatio's death.

Baz. I am a greued'man, and not a Ghost,
That came for iustice for my murdered sonne.

Hic. I, now I know thee, now thou namest my sonne:

Thou art the liuely image of my grieffe,
Within thy face my sorowes I may see.
Thy eyes are gum'd with teares, thy cheekes are wan,
Thy forehead troubled, and thy muttring lips
Murmure sad words, abruptly broken off,
By force of windie sighes thy spirit breathes,
And all this sorrow riseth for thy sonne:
And selfe, same sorrow feele I for my sonne.

Come in old man, thou shalt to Isabell,
Leane on my arme: I thee, thou me, shalt stay,
And thou, and I, and she will sing a song:
Three parts in one, but all of discords fram'd,
Talke not of cordes, but let vs now be gone,
For with a cord, Horatio was slaine.

Exeunt.

Enter King of Spaine, the Duke, Vice-roy, and Lorenzo,

Balthazar, Don Pedro, and Bel-imperia.

King. Goe, Brother it is the Duke of Castile's cause, Salute
the Vice-roy in our name,

Cast. I goe.

Vic. Goe forth Don Pedro, for thy Nephewes sake,
And greet the Duke of Castile,

Pedr. It shall be sir.

King. And now to meet the Portugues.
For as we now are, so sometimes were these
Kings and Commanders of the Westerne Indies.
Wel-come braue Vice-roy to the Court of Spaine,
And welcome all his honorable traine.
Tis not vnknowne to vs, for why ye come,
Or haue so kingly crost the Seas:
Sufficeth it in this we note the troth,
And more then common loue you lend to vs.

The Spanish Tragedie.

So is it that mine honorable Neece,
For it befeemes vs now that it be knowne,
Alreadie is betroth'd to Balthazar:
And by appoyntment, and our condiscant,
To morrow are they to be marryed.
To this intent we entertaine thy selfe,
Thy followers, their pleasure, and our peace:
Speake men of Portingale, shall it be so?
If I, say so: if not, say flatly no?

Vice. Renowned King, I come not as thou think'st,
With poubtfull followers, vnresolved men,
But such as haue vpon thine Articles
Confirmed thy motion, and contented me,
Know Soueraigne, I come to solemnize
The marriage of thy beloued Neece,
Faire Bel-imperia with my Balthazar,
With thee my Sonne, whom sith I liue to see,
Heere take my Crowne, I giue it her and thee:
And let me liue a solitarie life,
In ceaselesse prayers:

To thiake how strangely heauen hath thee preferred.

King. See brother see, how Nature striues in him,
Come-worthy Vice-roy, and accompanie
Thy friend, with thine extremities:

A place more priuate fits this Princely mood.

Vice. Or heere, or where your Highnes thinks it good.

Exeunt all but Cas. And Lor.

Cas. Nay stay Lorenzo, let me talke with you,
Seest thou this entertainment of these Kinges?

Lor. I do my Lord, and ioy to see the same.

Cas. And knowest thou why this meeting is?

Lor. For her my Lord, whom Balthazar doth loue,
And to confirme their promised marriage.

Cas. She is thy sister.

Lor. Who Bel-imperia? I my gracious Lord,
And this is the day that I haue longd to happelie to see.

Cas. Thou wouldst be loath that any fault of thine,

Should

The Spanish Tragedie.

Should intercept her in her happinesse.

Lor. Heavens will not let Lorenzo erre so much.

Cas. Why then Lorenzo listen to my wordes,
It is suspected, and reported too,
That thou Lorenzo wrongst Hieronimo,
And in his suites towards his Maiestie,
Still keepes him backe, and seekes to crosse his sute.

Lor. That I my Lord?

Cas. I tell thee Sonne, my selfe haue heard it sayd,
When to my sorrow I haue been ashamed
To answere for thee, though thou art my Sonne.
Lorenzo, knowest thou not the common loue,
And kindnes that Hieronimo hath wonne,
By his desertes within the Court of Spain?
Or seest thou not the K. my brothers care,
In his behalfe, and to procure his health?
Lorenzo, shouldst thou thwart his passions,
And he exclaime against thee to the King,
What honour wert in this assemblie,
Or what a scandale wert among the Kings,
To heare Hieronimo exclaime on thee?
Tell me, and looke thou tell me truely too,
Whence growes the ground of this report in Court?

Lor. My Lord, it lyes not in *Lorenzo*s power,
To stop the vulgar liberall of their tongues:
A small aduantage makes a water breach,
And no man liues, that long contenteth all.

Cas. My selfe haue seene thee busie to keepe backe
Him and his Supplications from the King.

Lor. Your selfe my L. haue seene his passions,
That ill beseemde the presence of a King:
And for I pittied him in his distresse,
I helde him thence with kind and curtuous wordes,
As free from malice to Hieronimo,
As to my soule, my Lord.

Cas. Hieronimo my sonne, mistakes thee then.

Lor. My gracious father, belecue me so he doth.

But

The Spanish Tragedie.

But what's a silly man distract in minde,
To thinke vpon the murder of his sonne,
Alas, how easie is it for him to erre?
But for his satisfaction and the worlds,
Twere good my L. that Hieronimo and I,
Were reconcild, if he misconster me.

Cas. Lorenzo, thou hast said, it shall be so,
Goe one of you and call Hieronimo.

Enter Balthazar and Bel-imperia.

Bal. Come Bel-imperia Balthazars content,
My sorrowes ease and soueraigne of my blisse,
Sith heauen hath ordainde thee to be mine:
Disperse those cloudes and melancholy lookes,
And cleare them vp with those thy sunne bright eyes,
Wherein my hope, and heauens faire beautie lies.

Bel. My lookes my L. are fitting for my loue,
Which new begun, can shew no brighter yet.

Bal. New kindled flames should burne as morning sunne.

Bel. But not too fast, least heate and all be done,
I see my Lord my father.

Bal. I ruce my loue, I will go salute him.

Cas. Welcome Balthazar, welcome braue Prince,
The pledge of Castiles peace:

And welcome Bel-imperia: How now girle?

Why comest thou sadly to salute vs thus?

Content thy selfe, for I am satisfied,

It is not now as when Andreas Iu'd,

We haue forgotten and forgiven that,

And thou art graced with a happier Loue.

But Balthazar heere comes Hieronimo,

He haue a word with him.

Enter Hieronimo and a Seruant.

Hiero. And where's the Duke?

Sr. Yonder.

Hiero. Euen so: what new deuice haue they deuised tro?

Pocas Palabras, milde as the Lambe,

If I will be reuenged? no, I am not the man.

Cas.

The Spanish Tragedie.

Cas. Welcome Hieronimo.

Lor. Welcome Hieronimo.

Bal. Welcome Hieronimo.

Hiero. My Lordes, I thanke you for Horatio.

Cas. Hieronimo, the reason that I sent
To speake with you, is this.

Hiero. What, so short?

Then Ile be gone, I thanke you fort.

Cas. Nay, stay Hieronimo: goe call him sonne.

Lor. Hieronimo, my father craues a word with you.

Hiero. With me sir? why my L. I thought you had done.

Lr. No, would he had.

Cas. Hiero. I heare you find your selfe agreed at my Son,
Because you haue not accesse vnto the King:
And say tis he that interceptes your suites.

Hiero. Why, is not this a miserable thing my Lord?

Cas. Hieronimo, I hope you haue no cause,
And would be loth that one of your deserts,
Should once haue reason to suspect my Sonne;
Considering how I thinke of you my selfe.

Hiero. Your sonne Lorenzo, whom my noble Lord,
The hope of Spaine, mine honorable friend?
Graunt me the combat of them, if they dare.

Drawes out his sword.

Ile meete him face to face to tell me so,
These be the scandalous reportes of such,
As loues not mee, and hate my Lord too much.
Should I suspect Lorenzo would preuent
Or crosse my sute, that loued my Sonne so well.
My Lord, I am ashamed it should be said.

Lor. Hieronimo, I neuer gaue you cause.

Hiero. My good Lord, I know you did not.

Cas. There then pause, & for the satisfaction of the world,
Hieronimo frequent my homely house,
The Duke of Castile Cyprians ancient seare,
And when thou wilt, vsc me, my sonne, and it

K.

But

The Spanish Tragedie.

But heere before Prince Balthazar and me,
Embrace each other, and be perfect friends.

Hier, I marry, my Lord, and shall.

Friends (quoth he) see, he be friends with you all:
Specially with you my loue lie Lord,
For diuers causes it is fit for vs,
That we be friends, the world is suspicious,
And men may thinke what we imagine not.

Bal. Why this is friendly done Hieronimo.

Lor. And that I hope old grudges are forgot.

Hier. What els, it were a shame it should not be so.

Cas. Come on Hieronimo, at my request,
Let vs entreat your company to day.

Exeunt.

Hiero. Your Lordships to command,

Pha: keepe your way.

Ms. chi mi fa? Pui Correzza Che non sola

Exit.

Enter Ghost and Reuenge.

Ghost.

Awake Eristha, Cerberus awake,
Solicite Pluto gentle Proserpine,
To combat Achiron and Erickus in hell,
For need by Six, and Phlegeton:
Nor ferried Caron to the firrie lakes,
Such fearefull sights, as poore Andrea sees
Reuenge awake.

Reueng. Awake, for why?

Ghost. Awake Reuenge, for thou art ill aduisde,
To sleepe away, what thou art warnde to watch.]

Reu. Content thy selfe, and do not trouble me.

Ghost. Awake Reuenge, If loue, as loue hath had,
Haue yet the power or preuailance in hell,
Hieronimo, with Lorenzo is ioynde in league,
And intercepts our passage to reuenge:
Awake Reuenge, or we are wot begone.

Reu. Thus

The Spanish Tragedie.

Re. Thus wordlings ground what they haue dreamd vpon
Content thy selfe, Andrea, though I sleepe,
Yet is my mood soliciting their soules,
Sufficieth thee that poore Hieronimo,
Cannot forget his sonne Horatio :
Nor dies Reuenge, although he sleepe awhile,
For in vnquiet, quietnesse is found :
And slumbring is a common wordly wile,
Behold Andrea for an instance, how
Reuenge hath slept, and then imagine thou,
What tis to be subiect to destinie.

Enter a dumme show.

Ghost. Awake, Reuenge, reueale this Mysterie.

Reuen. The two first, the nuptiall torches beare,
As bright burning as the mid-dayes sunne :
But after them doth Himen hie as fast,
Clothed in Sable, and a Saffron robe,
And blowes them out, and quenched them with blood,
As discontent that things continue so.

Ghost. Sufficeth me thy meanings vnderstood,
And thanks to thee and those infernall powers,
That will not tollerate a louers woe,
Rest thee, for I will sit to see the rest.

Reuenge. Then argue not, for thou hast thy request.

Exeunt.

ACTVS QVARTVS.

Enter Bel-imperia and Hieronimo.

Bel-imperia.

IS this the loue thou bearest Horatio?
Is this the kindnes that thou counterfeites?
Are these the fruits of thine incessant teares?
Hieronimo, are these thy passions,

K 2.

Thy

The Spanish Tragedie.

Thy protestations, and thy deepe laments,
That thou wert wont to wearie men withall?
O vnkind Father, O deceitfull worlde,
With what excules canst thou shew thy selfe?
With what dishonour, and the hate of men:
From this dishonour and the hate of men:
Thus to neglect the life and losse of him,
Whom both my letters, and thine owne beliefe,
Assures thee to be causelesse slaughtered?

Hieronimo, for shame Hieronimo,

Be not a historie to after times,

O! such ingratitude vnto thy Sonne,

Vnhappie Mother of such children then:

But monstrous Father, to forget so soone

The death of those, whom they with care and cost,

Haue tendred so, thus carelesse should be lost.

My selfe a stranger in respect of thee,

So loued his life, as still I with their deathes;

Nor shall his death be vnreueng'd by me,

Although I beare it out for fashions sake,

For heere I sweare in sight of heauen and earth,

Shouldst thou neglect the loue thou shouldst retaine,

And give it ouer, and deuise no more,

My selfe should send their hatefull soules to hell,

That wrought his downefall with extreamest death.

Hiero. But may it be that Bel-imperia,

Vowes such reuenge as she hath daind to saye:

Why then I see that heauen applies our drift,

And all the Saintes do sit soliciting,

For vengeance on those cursed murderers.

Madame tis true, and now I finde it so,

I found a Letter written in your name,

And in that Letter how Horatio dyed:

Pardon, O pardon Bel-imperia,

My feare and care in not beleeuing it,

Nor thinke, I thoughtles thinke vpon a meane,

To let his death be vnreuende at full:

And

The Spanish Tragedie.

And heere I vow, so you but giue consent,
And will conceale my resolution :
I will ere long determine of their deaths,
That cauteles thus haue murdered my sonne.

Bal. Hieronimo, I will consent conceale,
And ought that may effect for thine auail,
Ioyne with thee to reuenge Horacios death,

Hie. On then, whatloeuers I deuise,
Let me entreat you grace my practises?
For why the plot's already in my head.
Heere they are,

Enter Balthazar and Lorenz.

Bal. How now, Hieronimo, What courting Bel-imperia?

Hie. I, my Lord, such courting, as I promise you
She hath my heart; but you my Lord haue hers. (helpe.

Lor. But now, Hieronimo, or neuer wee are to entreat your

Hie. My helpe, why my good Lords assure your selues of me
For you haue giuen me cause, Lby my faith haue you.

Bal. Ie pleaid you at the entertainement of the Embassador
To grace the king so much as with a shew :
Now were your studie so well furnished,
As for the pasing of the first nights sport
To entertaine my father with the like :
Or any such like pleasing motion,
Assure your selfe it would content them well.

Hie. Is this all?

Bal. I, this is all.

Hie. Why then Ile fit you, say no more.
When I was yong I gaue my minde,
And plide my selfe to fruitlesse Poetrie :
Which though it profite the Professor naught,
Yet is it pasing pleasing to the world.

Lor. And how for that?

Hie. Marry, my good Lord, thus.
And yet me thinke you are to quicke with vs,
When in Toledo, there I studied,
It was my chance to write a Tragedie :

The Spanish Tragedie.

See heere my Lords, He shewes them a Booke.

Which long forgot, I found this other day.

Now would your Lordships fauour me so much,

As but to grace me with your asking it:

I meane each one of you to play a part,

Affure you it will proue most passing strange,

And wonderous plausible to that assembly.

Bal. What? would you haue vs plaie a Tragedie?

Hic. Way, Nero thought it no disparagement;

And Kings, and Emperours haue tane delight,

To make experience of their wits in plaies.

Lor. Nay, be not angrie good Hiermimo,

The Prince but asked a question,

Bal. In faith Hiermimo, and you be in earnest,

He make one.

Lor. And I, another.

Hier. Now, my good Lord, could you entreat

Your sister Bel-imperia to make one,

For whats a plaie without a woman in't?

Bel. Little entreatie shall serue me Hieronimo,

For I must needes be employed in your play.

Hic. Why this is well, I tell you Lordings,

It was determened to haue beene acted,

By Gentlemen and schollers too:

Such as could tell what to speake.

Bal. And now it shall be said, by Princes and Courtiers,

Such as can tell how to speake:

If as it is our Countrey maner,

You will but let vs know the Argument;

Hic. That shall I roundly, The Cronicles of Spaine,

Record this written of a Knight of Rhodes:

He was betrothed and wedded at the length,

To one Perfeda, an Italian Dame,

Whose beautie rauished all that her beheld,

Especially the soule of Soliman,

Who at the marriage was the chiefeest guest:

By sundry meanes, sought Soliman to winne

Perfeda

The Spanish Tragedie.

Perfeda loue, and could not gaine the same;
Then gan he breake his passions to a friend,
One of his Bashawes whom he held full deare;
Her had this Bashaw long solicited,
And saw she was not otherwise to be wonne,
But by her husbands death, this Knight of Rhodes,
Whom presently by treacherie he slew.
She sturde with an exceeding hate therefore,
As cause of this, slew Soliman:
And to escape the Bashawes tyrannie,
Did stab her selfe; and this is the Tragedie.

Lor. O, excellent!

Bel. But say, Hæronimo, What then became of him
That was the Bashaw?

Hæ. Marry, thus, mooued with remorse of his misdeedes;
Ran to a mountaine top and hang himselfe.

Bal. But which of vs is to performe that part.

Hæ. O, that will I my Lords, make no doubt of it,
He play the murderer I warrant you,
For I already haue conceited that.

Bal. And what shall I?

Hæ. Great Soliman the Turkish Emperour.

Lor. And I?

Hæ. Erasto, the Knight of Rhodes.

Bel. And I?

Hæ. Perfeda, chaste, and resolute.

And heere, my Lords, are seuerall abstracts drawne,

For each of you to note your parts.

And act it as occasion's offered you.

You must provide a Turkish cappe,

A blacke mustacio; and a Fauchion.

Gives a paper to Bal.

You, with a Crosse, like a Knight of Rhodes.

Gives another to Lor.

And Madame, you must attyre your selfe.

Gives Bel. another.

Like Phæbe, Flora, or the humuress,

Which

The Spanish Tragedie.

Which to your discretion shall seeme best.
And as for me my Lords, Ile looke to one,
And with the ranfome that the Vice-roy sent,
So furnish and performe this Tragedie,
As all the world shall say Hieronimo.
Was liberall in grating of it to.

Bal. Hieronimo, me thinkes a Comedie were better.

Hie. A Comedie, sic, Comedies are fit for common wits,
But to present a Kingly troupe with-all,
Giue me a stately written Tragedie,
Tragedies cothornuto, fitting Kings,
Containing matter and not common things,
My Lords, all this must be performed,
As fitting for the first nights reuelling.
The Italian Tragedians were so sharpe of wit,
That in one houres meditation,
They would performe any thing in action.

Lor. And well it may, for I haue seene the like
In Paris, amongst the French Tragedians.

Hie. In Paris, mas and well remembered,
There's one thing more that rests for vs to doe.

Bal. Whats that Hieronimo? forget not any thing.

Hier. Each one of vs must act his part,
In vnknowue languages,
That it may breed the more varietie.

As you, my Lord, in Latin, I, in Greeke,
You in Italian, and for because I know
That Bel-imperia hath practised the French,
In courtly French shall all her phrases be.

Bal. You meane to try my cunning then Hieronimo.

Bal. But this will be a meere confusion,
And hardly shall we all be vnderstood.

Hier. It must be so, for the conclusion
Shall prooue the inuention, and all was good;
And I my selfe in an Oration,
And with a strange and wonderous shew besides
That I will haue there behinde a curtaine,

Assure

The Spanish Tragedie.

Assure your selfe shall make the matter knowne,
And all shall be concluded in one Scene,
For there's no pleasure tane in tediousnes,

Bal. How like you this ?

Lor. Why thus, my Lord, we must resolute,
To soothe his humors vp.

Bal. On then, Hieronimo, farewell till soone,

Hic. Youle ply this geere?

Lor. I warrant you,

Exeunt all but Hieronimo,

Hic. I, why so, Now shall I see the fall of Babylon,
Wrought by the heauens in this confusion.
And if the world like not this Tragedie,
Hard is the hap of old Hieronimo.

Exit.

Enter Isabella with a weapon.

Tell me no more, O monstrous homicides,
Since neither pietie nor pittie mooues
The King to iustice or compassion:
I will reuenge my selfe vpon this place,
Where they murdered my beloued sonne.

She cuts downe the Arbour.

Downe with those branches and these loathsome bowes,
Of this vnfortunate and fatall Pine,
Downe with them Isabella, rent them vp,
And burne the rootes from whence the rest is sprunge,
I will not leaue a roote, a stalke, a tree,
A bough, a brance, a blossome, nor a leafe,
No, nor an hearbe within this garden plot.
Accursed complot of my miserie,
Fruitleesse for euer may this garden be,
Barren the earth, and bliseflesse whosoeuer
Imagines not to keepe it vnmanured.
An Easterne winde commixt' with noisome ayres,
Shall blast the plants and the yong' saplings.
The earth with serpents shall be pestered,
And passengers for feare to be infect
Shall stand aloofe, and looking at it, tell:

L

There

The Spanish Tragedie.

There murthered, died the sonne of Isabell,
I heere he di'd, and heere I him imbrace,
See where his Ghost solicites with his wounds,
Reuenge on her that should reuenge his death,
Hieronimo, make haste to see thy sonne,
For sorrow and dispaire hath cited me,
To heare Horatio plead with Radamant,
Make haste Hieronimo, to holde excuse,
Thy negligence in pursuite of their deaths,
Whose hatefull wrath becau'd him of his breath.
Ah ha, thou doest delay their deaths,
Forgiues the murderers of thy noble sonne,
And none but I, beittire me to no ende,
And as I curse this tree from further fruite,
So shall my wombe be cursed for his sake,
And with this weapon will I wound the breast,
The haplesse breatt that gaue Horatio lucke.

She slabs her selfe.

Enter Hieronimo, he knocks up the curtain.

Enter the Duke of Castile.

Cast. How now, Hieronimo, where's your fellowes,
That you take all this paine?

Hier. O sir, it is for the Authors credite,
To looke that all things may goe well:
But good my L. let me entreate your Grace,
To giue the King the coppie of the Play:
This is the Argument of what we shew.

Cast. I will, Hieronimo.

Hier. One thing more, my good L.

Cast. What's that?

Hier. Let me entreate your grace,
That when the traine are past into the gallerie,
You would vouchsafe to throw me downe the key.

Cast. I will Hieronimo.

Exit, Cast.

Hier. What are you ready Balthazar?
Bring a chaire and a cushion for the King.

Enter

The Spanish Tragedie.

Enter Balhazar with a chaire,

Well done Balhazar, hang vp the Tyle:
Our Scene is Rhodes, what is your beard on?

Bal. Halfe on, the other is in my hand.

Hier. Dispatch for shame, are you so long?

Exit, Bal.

Bethinke thy selfe Hieronimo,

Recall thy wits, recount thy former wrongs

Thou hast receiued by murder of thy sonne,

And lastly, not least, how Isabel,

Once his mother and thy dearest wife:

All woe begone for him hath slaine her selfe:

Behooues thee then Hieronimo to be reueng'd.

The plot is laid of dire reuenge,

On then Hieronimo, pursue reuenge:

For nothing wants but acting of reuenge.

Exit. Hier.

Enter Spanish King, Vice-roy, Duke of Castile, and their traine.

King. Now Vice-roy, shall we see the Tragedie,

Of Soliman the Turkish Emperour:

Performe of pleasure by your sonne the Prince,

My Nephew Don Lorenzo, and my Neece.

Vice. Who, Bel-imperia?

King. I, and Hieronimo our Marshall,

At whose request, they deine to doo't them selues.

These be our pastimes in the Court of Spaine.

Here brother, you shall be the Booke-keeper.

This is the Argument of that they shew.

He giues him a booke.

Gentlemen, this Play of Hieronimo, in sundry languages, was thought good to be set downe in English, more largely for the easier understanding to euery Publique Reader.

L 2

Enter

The Spanish Tragedie.

Enter Balthazar, Bel-imperia, and Heironimo.

Balthazar,

B Ashaw, that Rhodes is ours, yeeld heauens the honour
And holy Mahomet our sacred Prophet :
And be thou grac't, with euery excellence,
That Solman can giue, or thou desire.
But thy desert in conquering Rhodes, is lesse,
Then in reseruing this faire Christian Nymph,
Perfeda blisfull lampe of excellence :
Whose eyes compell like powretull Adamant,
The warlike heart of Solman to waite.

King. See Vice-roy, that is Balthazar your sonne,
That represents the Emperour Solman :
How well he actes his amorous passion.

Vice. I. Bel-imperia hath taught him that.

Castile. That's becaufe his minde runs all on Bel-imperia.

Hier. What euer ioy earth yeel is betide your Maiestie.

Bal. Earth yeelds no ioy, without *Perfeda*s loue,

Hic. Then let Perfeda on your grace attend.

Bal. She shall not waite on me, but I on her :
Drawne by the influence of her lights, I yeeld.
But let my friend the Rhodian Knight come forth,
Erasfo, deerer then my life to me,
That he may see Perfeda my beloued.

Enter Erasfo.

King. Heere comes Lorenzo, looke vpon the plot,
And tell me brother, what part playes he ?

Bel. Ah, my Erasfo, welcome to Perfeda.

Era. Thrice happy is Erasfo, that thou liuest,
Rhodes losse is nothing to *Erasfo*s ioy,
Sith his Perfeda liues, his life suruiues.

Bal. Ah, Bashaw, heere is loue betwixt Erasfo,
And faire Perfeda soueraigne of my soule.

Hic. Remoue Erasfo mighty Solman,
And then Perfeda, will be quickly wonne.

Bal. Erasfo is my friend, and while he liues,
Perfeda neuer will remooue her loue.

Hic. Let

The Spanish Tragedie.

Hier. Let not Eraſto liue to grieue great Soliman,

Bal. Deare is Eraſto in our princely eye.

Hier. But if he be your riual let him die.

Bal. Why let him die, ſo loue commandeth me,
Yet grieue I that Eraſto ſhould ſo die.

Hier. Eraſto, Soliman ſaluteth thee,
And lets thee wit by me his highnes will:
Which is, thou ſhouldeſt be thus employd.

Stab him.

Bel. Aye me Eraſto, ſee Soliman, Eraſto's ſlaine.

Bal. Yet liueth Soliman to comfort thee.
Faſt Queene of beautie, let not fauour die,
But with a gracious eyes behold his griefe,
That with Perſeda's beautie is encreaſt?
If by Perſeda's griefe be not releaſt,

Bel. Tyrant, deſiſt ſoliciting vaine ſuites,
Relentles are mine cares to thy laments,
As thy butcher is pittieſſe and baſe,
Which ſeaz'd on my Eraſto, harmeſſe Knight,
Yet by thy power thou thinkeſt to command,
And to thy power Perſeda doeth obey:
But were ſhe able, thus ſhe would reuenge
Thy treacheries on thee ignoble Prince:

Let her ſtab him.

And on her ſelfe, ſhe would be thus reueng'd.

Stab her ſelfe.

King. Well ſayd old Marſhall, this was brauely done;

Hier. But Bel-imperia playes Perſeda well.

Vice. Were this in earnest Bel-imperia,
You would be better to my ſonne then ſo.

King. But now what followes for Hieronimo?

Hier. Marty, this followes for Hieronimo.

Heere breake we off our ſuncky languages,
And thus conclude I in our vulgar tongue.
Happely you thinke, but booteleſſe be your thoughts:
That this is fabuloſly counterfeitt
And that we doe as all Tragedians doe,

The Spanish Tragedie.

To die to day for (fashioning our Scene)
The death of Aux, or some Romane Peere,
And in a minute starting vp againe,
Reuiue to please too morrowes audience.
No, Princes: know I am Hieronimo,
The hopelesse father of a haplesse sonne,
Whose tongue is tun'd to tell his latest tale,
Not to excuse grosse errors in the Play.
I see your lookes vrge instance of these wordes,
Behold the reason vrging me to this:

He shewes his dead sonne.

See heere my shew, looke on this spectacle:
Heere lay my hope, and heere my hope hath endes:
Heere lay my heart, and heere my heart was slaine:
Heere lay my treasure, heere my treasure lost:
Heere lay my blisse, and heere my blisse bereft:
But hope, heart, treasure, ioy, and blisse:
All fled, faild, died, yea all decayde with this.
From forth these woundes came breath that gaue me life.
They murdered me that made these fatall markes:
The cause was loue, whence grew this mortall hate,
The hate Lorenzo, and yong Balthazar:
The loue my sonne to Bel-imperia.
But night the couerer of accursed crimes,
With pitchie silence husht the traitors harmes,
And lent them leaue, for they had sorted leasure,
To take aduantage in my garden plot,
Vpon my sonne, my deare Horatio.
There mercilesse they butchered vp my boy,
In blacke darke night, to pale dim cruell death.
He shrikes, I heard, and yet me thinkes I heare,
His dismall out-cric eccho in the ayre:
With soonest speed I hasted to the noyse,
Where hanging on a tree I found my sonne,
Through girt with wounds and slaughtered as you see.
An I greued I (thinke you) at this spectacle?
Speake Portugues, whose losse resembles mine,

The Spanish Tragedie.

If thou canst weepe vpon thy Balthazar ?
Tis like I waile for my Horatio,
And you, my L. whose reconciled sonne,
Marcht in a net, and thought him selfe vnseene,
And rated me for braine-sicke lunacie,
Which God amende, that mad Hieronimo,
How can you brooke our playes Catastrophe ?
And heere behold this blodie hand-kercher,
Which at Horatio's death, I weeping dipt,
Within the riuer of his bleeding woundes ;
It as propitious, see I haue reserued,
And neuer hath it left my bloody heart,
Soliciting remembrance of my vow,
With these, O these accursed murderers,
Which now performde, my heart is satisfied.
And to this end the Bashaw I became,
That might reuenge me on Lorenzoes life ;
Who therefore was appointed to the part,
And was to represent the Knight of Rhodes,
That I might kill him more conueniently.
So Viceroy, was this Balthazar thy sonne,
That Soliman which Belimperia,
In person of Perfeda murdered :
Soly appointed to that tragicke part,
That she might slay him that offended her.
Poore Belimperia mist her part in this,
For though the storie saith she should haue died,
Yet I of kinnesse, and of care to her,
Did otherwise determine of her ende.
But loue of him, whom they did hate too much,
Did vrg her resolution to be such.
And Princes, now behold Hieronimo,
Author, and actor in this Tragedie :
Bearing his latest fortune in his fist ;
And will as resolute conclude his part,
As any of the actors gone before.
And Gentles, thus I end my play,

Vrge

The Spanish Tragedie.

Vrge no more wordes, I haue no more to say.

He runs to hang himselfe.

King. O hearken Vice-roy, hold Hieronimo.

Brother, my Nephew and thy sonne are slaine.

Vice. We are betrayde, my Balthazar is slaine.

Breake ope the doores, run, saue Hieronimo.

They breake in, and hold Hieronimo.

Hieronimo, Doe but enforme the King of these euent,

Vpon mine honour thou shalt haue no harme.

Hier. Vice-roy, I will not trust thee with my life,

Which I this day haue offered to my sonne:

Accur'd wretch, why stay'st thou him that was resolu'd to die

King. Speake Traitor, damned bloody murderer speake,

For now I haue thee, I will make thee speake,

Why hast thou done this vnderferuing deed?

Vice. Why hast thou murdered my Balthazar?

Cast. Why hast thou butchered both my children thus?

Hier. Be it are your sure they are dead?

Cast. I, slauie, too sure.

Hier. What and yours too?

Vic. I, all are dead, not one of them suruiue.

Hier. Nay, then I care not, come, and we shall be friends,

Let vs lay our heades together,

See here's a goodly nowse will hold them all.

Vice. O damned Deuill, how secure he is:

Hier. Secure, why doest thou wonder at it.

I tell thee Vice-roy, this day I haue scene reueng'd,

And in that sight am growne a powder Monarch,

Then euer sate vnder the Crowne of Spaine:

Had I as many lyues as there be Starres,

As many Heauens to go to, as those liues,

I'de giue them all, I and my soule to boote,

But I would see thee ride in this red poole.

Cast. Speake, Who were thy confederates in this?

Vic. That was thy daughter Bel-imperia,

For by her hand my Balthazar was slaine:

I saw

The Spanish Tragedy

I saw her stab him.

Hic. O good words: as deare to me was my Horatio,

As yours, or yours, or yours my Love to you.

My guiltlesse sonne was by Lorenzo slaine,

And by Lorenzo, and that Balthazar,

Am I at last reuenged thorowly.

Vpon whose soules may heauens be yet reuenged,

With greater farre then these afflictions.

Me thinkes since I grew inward with reuenge,

I cannot looke with scorn enough on death.

King. What dost thou mocke vs slaue, bring torturs forth.

Hic. Doe, doe, doe, and meane time Ile torture you

You had a sonne (as I take it) and your sonne,

Should ha'e beene married to your daughter: ha, wast not so?

You had a sonne too, he was my Lieges Nephew,

He was proude and politicke, had he liued,

He might a come to weare the crowne of Spaine,

I thinke twas so: twas I that killed him,

Looke you this same hand, twas it that stab'd

His heart, Doe you see this hand?

For one Horatio, if you euer knew him

A youth, one that they hanged vp in his fathers garden:

One that did force your valiant sonne to yelde,

While your more valiant sonne did take him prisoner:

Vic. Be deafe my sences, I can heare no more.

King. Fall heauen, and couer vs with thy sad ruines,

Cast. Rowle all the world within thy pitchy cloud.

Hic. Now doe I applaud what I haue acted.

Nunckmers cadamanus.

Now to expresse the rupture of my part;

First take my tongue, and afterward my heart.

He bites out his tongue.

King. O monstrous resolution of a wretch,

See Vice-roy, he hath bitten forth his tongue,

Rather then to reueale what we requirde.

Cast. Yet can he write.

M

King. And

The Spanish Tragedie.

King. And if in this I satisfie vs,
We will deuise the extreamest kind of death,
That euer was inuented for a wretch,

He makes signes for a knife to mend his pen.

Caj. O, he would haue a knife to mend his pen.

Vice. Heere, and aduise thee that thou write the troth.
Looke to my brother, Iane Hieronimo.

He with the knife stabs the Duke and himselfe,

King. What age hath euer heard such monstrous deeds?
My brother and the whole succeeding hope,
That Spaine expected after my discease.
Go beare his hodie hence that we may mourne
The losse of our beloued brothers death,
That he may be in tomb'd what ere befall,
I am the next the neereft last of all.

Vice. And thou Don Pedro, doe the like for vs,
Take vp our haples sonne vtinely slaine:
Set me with him, and he with wofull me,
Vpon the maine mast of a ship vnmard,
And let the winde and tide hale me along,
To Sillas barking and vntamed griefe:
Or to the lothsome poole of Acheron,
To weepe my want for my sweet Balthazar,
Spaine hath no refuge for a Portingale.

Exeunt.

The trumpets sound a dead March, the King of Spaine mourning after his brothers body, and the king of Portingale bearing the body of his sonne.

Enter Ghost and Revenge.

Ghost.

I now my hopes haue ende in their effects,
When blood and sorrow finish my desires,
Horatio murdered in his fathers bower,
Vile Serberino, by Peðringano slaine:

Falſe

The Spanish Tragedie.

False Pedringano hangd by quaint deuice,
Faire Isabella, by her selfe murthered,
Prince Balthazar by Bel-imperia stab'd,
The Duke of Castile and his wicked sonne,
Both done to death by old Hieronimo.
My Bel-imperia false as Dido sell,
And good Hieronimo slaine by himselfe:
I, these were spectacles to please my soule.
Now will I begge at louely Proserpine,
That by the vertue of her Princely doome,
I may consort my friends in pleasing sort,
And on my foes worke iust and sharpe reuenge,
Ile lead my friend Horatio through those fieldes,
Where neuer dying warres are still inurde.
Ile leade faire Isabella to that traine,
Where pittie weepes, but neuer feeleth paine.
Ile lead my Bel-imperia to those ioyes,
That Vestaall vergins, and faire Queenes possesse,
Ile leade Hieronimo wher' Orpheus playes,
Adding sweet pleasure to eternall dayes.
But say Reuenge, for thou must helpe or none,
Against the rest how shall my hate be showne?

Reuenge.

This hand shall hale them downe to deepest hell,
Where nought but furies, bugs, and tortures dwell.

Ghost.

Then sweete Reuenge doe this at my request,
Let me be iudge, and doome them to vnrest,
Let loose poore Titus from the Vulkres gripe,
And let Don Ciprian supply his roome.
place Don Lorenzo on Ixiens wheele,
And let the Louers endles paines surcease:
Iuno forgets old wrath and grants him ease.
Hang Balthazar about Chimeras necke
And let him there bewaile his bloodie loue,
Repinning at our ioyes that are aboue.

For here though death hath end their miserie,
Yet there begin theyr endless Tragedie.

Then cast we downe to murther thy friend or foe,
Do please thy friends in ease, let's rest in woe.

The Spanish Tragedie.

Let Sorberino goe to roule the fatall stone,
And take from Scipius his endless mone.
False Pedringana for his trecherie,
Let him be dragde through boiling Acheron,
And there liue dying still in endless flames,
Blaspheming Gods and all their holy names.

Remus.

Then haste we downe to murther thy friends and foes,
To place thy friends in ease, the rest in woes,
For here though death hath end their miserie,
Yet there begin their endless Tragedie.
